DEDICATION

To Henry Churchill King

Like to the quiet grace of chapel walls
Molding and holding pure the mighty tone
Of a great organ, we have richly known
Your graciousness. And in the dim-lit halls
Of your rich learning, whose fine portal falls
Apart for us in peace, a charity
All powerful is revealed, and brightly we
Behold another vision such as Paul's.

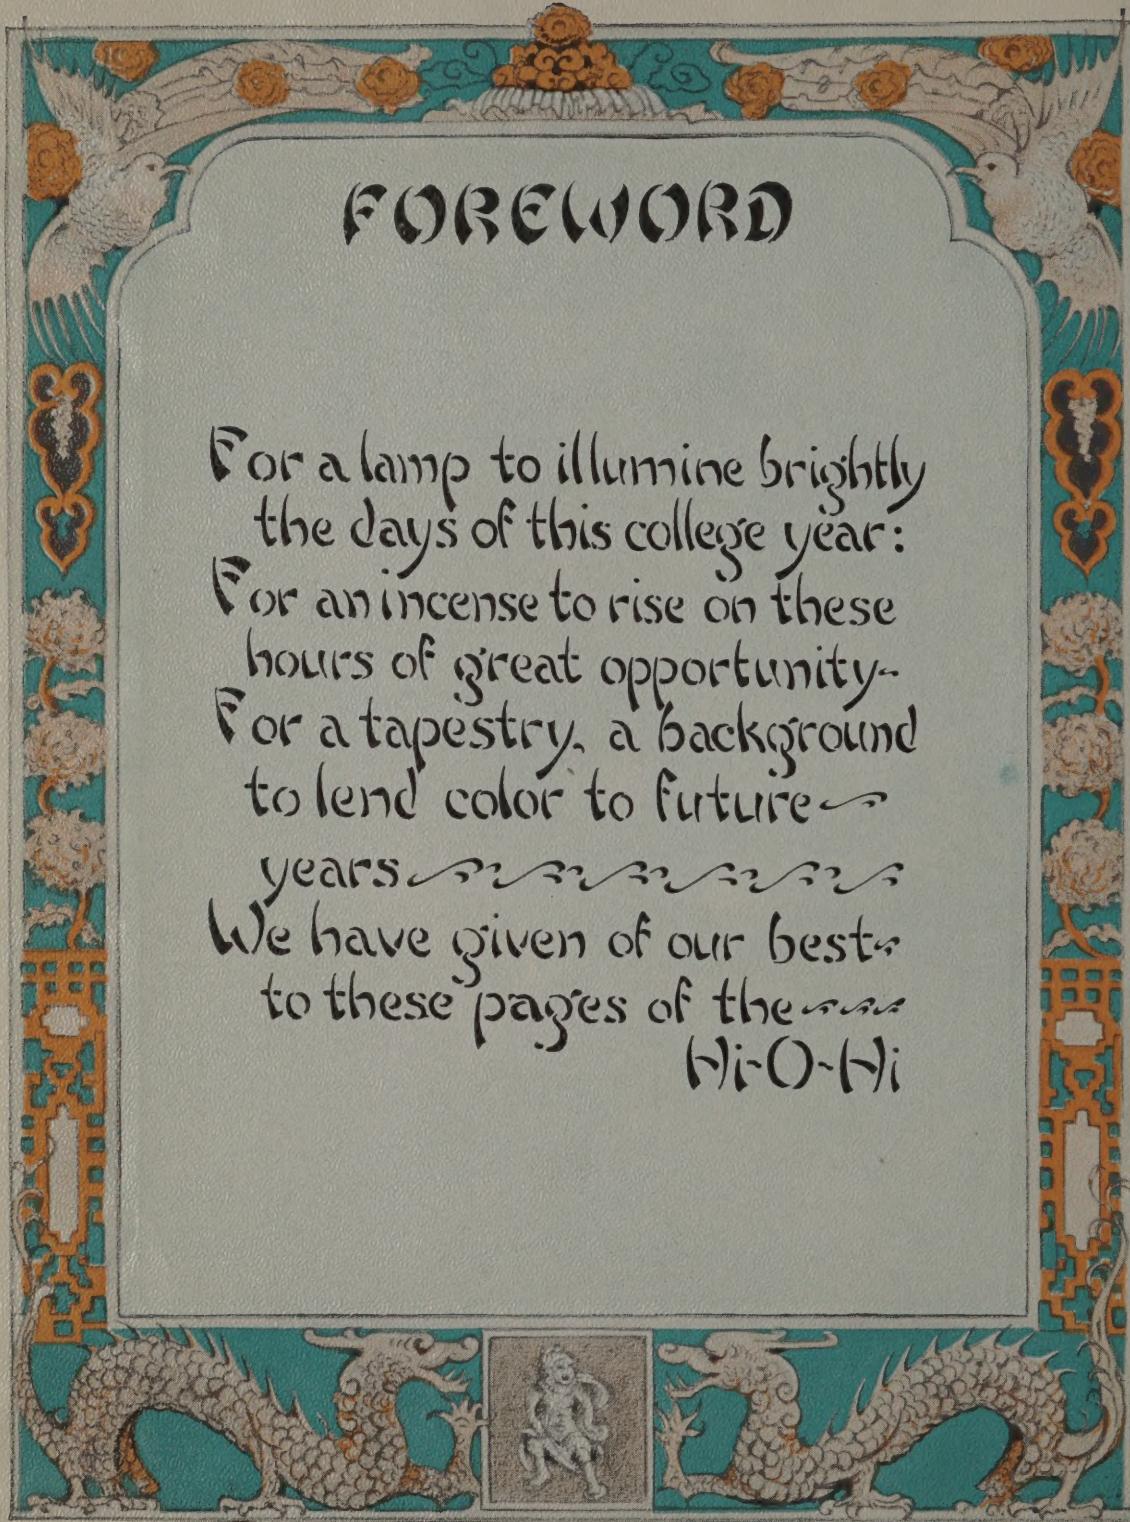

Oh, great companion in our quest for truth
You who have made of sanity a flower,
At whose dear touch the gaudy dreams of youth
Assume a softer polish, in that hour
When first we felt you with us, yet above
We loved you and were humbled in our love.

FOREWORD

THE ART MOTIF

It has been the editors' purpose to make the 1928 Hi-O-Hi truly representative of the whole Oberlin, as it is today at the close of the greatest period in its development. In doing so we have sought to honor Oberlin in China by drawing directly upon Chinese art, as it is seen in the temples of Shansi, for the adornment of this volume.

Administration

Some Memories

At the request of the editors of the Hi-Q-Hi, I am writing a word in view of my resignation, which is to take effect at the end of the year, and in view of something more than fifty years of direct connection with the College, as undergraduate, as teacher, and as administrator.

I had two and a half years as an undergraduate, having come to Oberlin in the middle of my sophomore year.

My teaching covered forty-six years, ending with the year 1924-25. Except for the years when I was away on leave for study or travel or war service, I was in active teaching from 1879, teaching, in order, the subjects of Latin, Mathematics, Biology, Philosophy, and Theology.

If my administration continues to the end of the present year, it will have covered twenty-eight years of service as President, and my entire term of connection with the College will have covered more than half of the period of the history of the College - fifty out ninety-four years. The figures of Secretary Jones concerning the alumni, show that to date the College has graduated in its entire history 8942 individual graduates, of whom 5086, or 56.5 per cent, have been graduated within the current presidency.

I have had the pleasure of seeing the resources of the College grow, since I entered Oberlin as a student, from about $400,000 to more than $16,000,000. I am particularly grateful for the long and continued service, which has been granted to me, with its involved opportunity of building my life's work into a single institution. I am deeply interested in Trustees, Faculty, Alumni and Students, for the kind and considerate fellowship they have given me through the long term of the years.

Henry Churchill King

WE CALL HIM PREXY

Just fifty years ago, when co-education was still a new and daring experiment, Oberlin men and women were not allowed to walk home from church together. They could, however, dine in company when they got home. The building known as Ladies' Hall, where Talcott now stands, was chief boarding house for the youths and maidens of that time. On a certain day at the beginning of the college year of 1877 (school used to open in the latter part of August), the boarders at the Hall had occasion to notice a new waiter in the dining-room. "Who is he," inquired someone, and the question went the rounds, "who is the new waiter, with the serious eyes and dark red hair?" The reply came back: "He's just entering, as a Sophomore. His name is King."

The others soon came to know and like their new fellow-student. They found that although he was a quiet, unassuming and earnest young man, he joined heartily in their good times. He could never have been accused of false pride, for when he had the misfortune to stand too near the stove in a frigid class-room one morning, he wore for the rest of the winter an overcoat with a great brown scorch in the front.

Two years later found him seated among a congenial group at the special Senior Table of the Hall. In the same party was a charming, dark-haired girl, in later years to be the wife of one of the best-loved presidents of the college. She was known to have a fine literary appreciation, and they were both active in the Union Library Association of that time, which is commemorated in our songs as the U. L. A. This was an association of the five Literary Societies then on the Campus; and it published every two weeks, as a literary and a news paper, the Oberlin Review. In the Christmas number of that year, at the head of the staff list for the first time appeared the name, H. C. King, '79, Editor-in-Chief.

After his Commencement in 1879 Mr. King's great work began. He had thought seriously of becoming a missionary to the foreign field, but, fortunately for us all, he finally decided that his best service could be given to the cause of education in this country, and that it should begin in his own Alma Mater. Then began a long, steady, upward progress, from the position of tutor in the Academy, through a professorship in the College, to the office of the Registrar, and then to the chair of the Dean. All this time, he was student as well as teacher, and his scholastic achievement is written in his long list of degrees from universities all over the world. Yet never did he lose the strong contact of friendship with those about him. Some of the most precious memories of the students of those years center about the Sunday morning hour in Mr. King's Bible class.

The great day came, in November of 1902, when the College prepared its tribute of honor for the man it loved so long. What a thrill of joy went through Campus and town when the Chapel bell pealed out—for the new President's name was Henry Churchill King! That message was to sound a note of gladness down the years, through generations of students, and to ring in the four corners of the earth.

In the old files of the Review, we find one number devoted to the occasion. Among all the other articles and messages of congratulation, there is one that makes us smile, for it puts down in all its boyish sincerity and expressive slang, a real student tribute. It is in the form of a letter in rhyme, as follows:

"Dear Ned: You surely should have been in town the other night.
To see a celebration carried on about all right.
The Trustees met one afternoon and did the proper thing
By naming as our Prexy, Dr. Henry Churchill King.
You've heard of him, I guess: I think he's been here quite a while,
And when it comes to fond respect, he's made his little pile.
Quite late at night they hammered on the good old Chapel bell,
And all the kids came tumbling out to give the College yell.
We took a cab to Baldwin, where the Trustees had a party,
And put the President inside, with greetings good and hearty.
My, but the girls were wrathy, 'cause they had to stay in bed,
While we were marching down the street with Prexy at the head.
And when we came to Prexy's house we halted every wheel,
To see him in his party rags, to hear him make a spiel,
And everything grew quiet, as when on football days,
Gar says, "They're giving signals now," and everybody prays.
He made a keen old speech that night, and all the fellows went
To shake his wing, and smile a few upon the President.
About the time the midnight car came rushing down the track,
We all pulled out, and then pulled in. Affectionately,

—JACK."

In May, in the following Spring of 1903, came the even greater day of his inauguration. The Speaker was Mr. Washington Gladden. He walked with the new President in the long procession, with the underclassmen dressed in white, and wearing their distinctive colors, the Seniors in cap and gown, and the "theologs" in Sunday black. As they passed between the lines of cheering people, this great visitor marvelled at the power of the man beside him, who could awaken such looks of trust and admiration.

In a report submitted to the Trustees during his first year, the new President outlined a plan of thirty-four definite needs of the College, toward the fulfillment of which he intended to give every effort. Out of the entire list, there are only seven which have not been accomplished, and two of these pertain to the Oberlin Academy, which no longer exists. Some of the significant acquisitions of this great advance under his leadership are: The Chapel Organ, the Administration Building, the Library Building and its Endowments, Endowments for Fellowships in the Seminary, and for Merit Scholarships in the College, several Residence Halls, the Men's Building, the Central Heating-plant, the Women's Gymnasium, the College Hospital, and the Art Building with its equipment. In summary it may be stated that the whole Endowment of the College has increased eleven times; the value of the College property has tripled; and the Student Enrollment has nearly doubled, since 1903. All these material gains are only the outward manifestation of the greater riches he has brought to us.

Such is the story that you will not find in National Biographies, or Who's Who, but which is brighter and dearer to us than the splendid list of his other great achievements and honors. It is both hard and easy to write of him—hard, because, "he stands so high that any but the briefest mention of him would be impertinent"; easy, because we love him so well. We heard and read of him before we came to College. That first day in Chapel, when everything was so new and exciting and fine, he came in cap and gown, and the upperclassmen whispered, as we rose to do him honor, "That's Prexy." We come back every Fall and find things changed—there are new faces; but the buildings and the elms remain the same. At the bonfire in the evening we hear Prexy speak; he welcomes us back to Oberlin, and again we are at home. These and many other things we remember, for they lie deep in our lives.

We shall never forget President King's reading of that great sermon, "The Well in the Valley of Baka." Once this spot was barren and desert; now it is a place of wells. Among them is that which he himself has dug. Its waters are the waters of quietness, and those who thirst may drink, and know the sweetness of simplicity, of humility, of friendship with all mankind. For all these things we are thankful, and let us be thankful all the days of our lives: we have walked and talked with greatness.

Harold Lee King
June 12, 1883 - October 21, 1926

This page commemorates a teacher who represented the best traditions of human learning. If a college—in the phrase of a Renaissance humanist—be “built of men,” the work of Harold Lee King is builded well into this foundation of learning. His was the scholar’s life, given to patient study and to the search for that understanding which lies beyond knowledge. As a man he dared to live his own life, and he possessed the great quality of seeing the world through his own eyes. He was no conformist but a true scholar.

In Memoriam
Ruth Elizabeth Yoder
June 29, 1906 - June 10, 1926

The death of Ruth Elizabeth Yoder, daughter of Reverend and Mrs. D. Carl Yoder of East Cleveland, Ohio, was a source of deep regret to all. Miss Yoder was a valued member of the Women's Glee Club during her Sophomore year, participating in all of its activities. During her college days she lived at Keep Cottage and the Vatican, where she made many warm friends.

In reporting Miss Yoder's death to the college administration, Dean Klingenhagen referred to her as "a strong and lovely character."

Her loss is felt keenly by students and faculty alike.

The Freshman Honor List for the first Semester of the year includes the names of ten per cent of the Freshman Class with highest scholarship grades. Students whose names are marked with a star (*) ranked in the highest ten in the class. There are 370 Freshmen in the class. The list includes 37 names.

The following Honor List is prepared under the two following rules: (1) Only those students are considered who are classed as Freshmen; (2) only those students are considered who have taken not less than fifteen hours of work, eleven of these being chosen from the regular Freshman work.

OBERLIN IN SHANSI

During the year 1925-26, the Taiku schools were run by the Chinese staff, the two Oberlin representatives being the only foreign teachers there. It has been very encouraging to see the fine way in which all the executive work was done by the Chinese themselves.

The attempt is being made to conform to the educational regulations of the Chinese. In other ways Oberlin in China is trying to be a Chinese school with Oberlin ideals rather than a foreign school grafted in. This will increase the influence of the school in a nation which is waking to a new self-consciousness. The fact that very few of our students left us during the unsettled conditions of last year confirms this policy.

In the new zeal of patriotism of the present China, our students and teachers are as interested as any. We would not want to have them otherwise. Whatever happens, the good of China is the good of our school.

In such rapidly changing conditions, very young men at times wield great influence. And in Oberlin in Shansi these young men are being influenced by Chinese teachers with high ideals of service, as truly sons of Oberlin as any that have ever gone through the mother college in America.

CLEAVELAND R. CROSS

The President of Williams has referred to alumni associations as avenues of approach from the college to alumni and from alumni to the college and says that the first journey should be from the college to the alumni. The Oberlin Association, however, seeks an avenue of constantly moving traffic in both directions. From its very beginning the college must have felt the need of knowing its product; and the interest, enthusiasm and loyalty of Oberlin alumni have been constant agencies in the institution's progress.

The college goes to the alumni to show them what it seeks to be and by observing them to determine whether its accomplishment balances its attempt. The alumni come back to the college not only for the sake of Auld Lang Syne, but, educationally minded, to measure the college as it progresses and changes. Mindful that education is not completed with graduation they also return for inspiration. These interests the Alumni Association seeks to organize through its Council and Association meetings, the Alumni Magazine and the contact of its officers with alumni throughout the country. The Association was inevitable, its usefulness has been proven, its future depends largely upon the students as they become alumni.

REVIEW OF REVIEWS

The excerpts on these pages are taken from the Oberlin Review of two and three decades ago. They merely indicate the wealth of material, interesting alike to students of this and former generations to be found in the Review files.

The second lecture of the U. L. A. Course was given Tuesday evening, Nov. 8, 1898, by Edward Everett Hale. The large audience which greeted the venerable speaker from Boston did not fail to take the opportunity of listening to a man whose life is as fruitful and wholesome as Dr. Hale's * * *

His style was as easy and pleasant as a conversationalist. His subject was "The Twentieth Century." * * *

He reviewed first the centuries that had passed. The twentieth century is to be one of development, by the side of whose achievements, the discoveries of the nineteenth century will be but fundamental rudiments.

First, We shall learn to educate rather than instruct—to train for manhood and womanhood rather than instill knowledge.

Second, The movements of population will be so facilitated as to avoid congestion. * * *

Third, Peace will be promoted among the nations by the establishment of a permanent court of arbitration.

James Whitcomb Riley will give the next lecture November 10, under the auspices of the U. L. A.

Frau Pastor Bischoff and her family

of boarders have moved into more commodious quarters, in the house formerly occupied by Professor Magoun.

* * *

Mr. Cowdrey has been confined to the house by an attack of mumps.

Lynds Jones' class in geology spent Saturday afternoon in Elyria.

'93. Mr. C. W. Savage and his wife, Bessie Pelton Savage, live in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Mr. Savage is instructor in Greek and Latin at the Shadyside Academy.

George M. Jones, '94, has been appointed Junior Editor of the Review.

Harry Haskell, '96, is now assistant Editor of the Kansas City Star.

Miss Katherine Wright is at home in Dayton, Ohio, and is teaching in the Dayton High School.

H. B. Thurston, '98, had a position in the College Treasurer's Office.

Mr. Bruce Davis, 'ex-con., has a large class in Waterloo, Ia., and writes that he will be in Oberlin next year to resume his studies.

The Review acknowledges the receipt of a neat pamphlet containing the Laws of Ohio Relating to Intoxicating Liquors, published by the Ohio Anti-Saloon League, compliments of W. B. Wheeler, '94, attorney.

The greatest interest in the town election last night centered on the question of issuing bonds for electric lights. This failed, by only six votes, of receiving the necessary two-thirds of the vote cast.

The Oberlin Cycle Club, organized and incorporated last vacation, has had for its object the construction of a cinder path between Oberlin and Elyria, thus securing a continuous path to Cleveland. All wheelmen should be interested in this matter. * * * We should not be behind in wheel enterprise.

Oberlin's first Inter-collegiate Football game was with the University of Michigan in 1891. The Varsity was captained by Grosvenor. The game was played at Ann Arbor and Oberlin was defeated.

Last Monday night about thirty men who had played on the "Scrub team" gathered at Hobbs at the invitation of Mr. A. G. Cumings to eat oysters. At half past ten they broke up with the "Ricketty Ax" for Mr. Cumings.

Last Tuesday night from eight to twelve the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hutchins on Forest Street was given over to some thirty fellows who had come on invitation of Mr. A. Turner, '01, to help him celebrate his advent into manhood.

"Gar" Fauver has been coaching a winning football team at Center College, Kentucky.

"Win" Fauver is Professor of Physical Culture in Alma College, Michigan.

Monosmith, Hatch, and Brown of '02 walked to Cleveland on Monday of last week.

Frank A. Wilder, '92, is Assistant Geologist in the Iowa Geological Survey.

Charles H. A. Wager is appointed to the Chair of English Literature to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Professor W. W. Cressy. Mr. Wager is a man of fine personality, of broad and accurate scholarship with six years of highly successful and enthusiastic college work behind him.

Student Government

STUDENT COUNCIL

The Student Council, executive board of the student body, takes care of the interests in which all of the students have a part. The Council has nine members, seven of whom are elected by the student body by popular vote: President, Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer, who is chairman of the Student Chest and Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Council; Representative of Forenecics, Publications and Clubs; a Women's Representative and a Men's Representative who head the Campus Courtesy Committee. The President of the Men's Senate and President of the Women's League are ex-officio members.

The Student Council meets with a committee of nine faculty members to consider questions on which student and faculty opinion is essential.

Through membership in the National Student Federation of America, Oberlin is linked up with two hundred other student bodies. Oberlin this year sent two delegates to the Annual Congress of the N. S. F. A. at Ann Arbor. There vital problems of every campus were considered and committees for continued investigation were appointed. Through the regional representative reports of the findings of these committees come to us and we know how other colleges have met certain situations. That the Federation may be broad in its scope it sponsors international connections through tours which visit university centers in Europe.

The purpose of the Federation, according to its constitution, is indicative of its spirit: "The Federation purposes to achieve a spirit of cooperation among the students of the United States; to give consideration to questions affecting students' interests; to develop an intelligent student opinion on questions of national and international importance; to foster understanding among students of the world in furtherance of an enduring world peace."

EXECUTIVE BOARD

Second row—Andrews, Breckenridge, Good, Bates, Grosvenor
Top row—Bosworth, Fifield, Bowles, Roethe

THE WOMEN'S LEAGUE

The Women's League includes all College and Conservatory women and is the governing body, and the promoter of all women's interests on the campus.

The League duties are managed through four sub-organizations—the Executive Board, the Women's Senate, the Honor Court, and the Joint Council. The Executive Board is the key center or the executive body of the League. It uses its disciplinary power, furthers women's interests, considers the suggested changes in legislation, and keeps the League affairs running smoothly. The Honor Court judges all violations of the Honor System in academic work. The Joint Council comprised of nine Faculty women, and nine students is the cooperative body that determines all changes in Legislation referred to it by the Executive Board, and decides the more serious disciplinary cases.

The League this year has been striving to broaden its scope by including, not only its governing powers, but the social life of the campus as expressed in the monthly teas that are held in the Women's Building.

Through contact with other colleges, at the W. I. A. S. G. Conference, Oberlin women are broadening their views on National and International affairs.

THE WOMEN'S SENATE

The membership of the Women's Senate consists of the Executive Board of the Women's League, the vice-presidents of the various classes and representatives elected from the women's houses.

The Women's Senate meets on the first Monday of every month. Campus problems are discussed and changes in legislation are here initiated. Such proposed changes are submitted to the Executive Board, and then to the Joint Council, made up of students and faculty. If passed by these two groups and approved by the general faculty, they are then presented to women of the League, whose final ratification is required before such changes can become effective. The rules, in three cases, were modified this year by this method.

The Women's Senate is not a closed body. Student visitors are welcome at the meetings, and problems for discussion can be brought in by students not members of the Senate.

THE WOMEN'S HONOR COURT

The Women's Honor Court has nine members. The chairman is elected at the annual Women's League elections in the spring and the other members are chosen by the Women's Senate from members of the two upper classes of the College and Conservatory. The Court considers all cases of academic dishonesty reported to it by students or faculty.

This year the Student Council and the Men's and Women's Honor Courts have considered the revision and simplification of the procedure of the Courts, hoping to attain an ever growing perfection in the Honor System, so well established in Oberlin.

THE WOMEN'S BOARD OF THE CONSERVATORY

The Women's Board of the Conservatory is organized to further the interests of the Conservatory women and, together with the Men's Board, manage the annual Thanksgiving party and Christmas Promenade.

The Board consists of the President (or Vice-President) of the Senior conservatory class who automatically becomes the President of the Board; the Presidents (or Vice-Presidents) of the other classes, the President, Social Chairman and Treasurer of the Women's League, Chairman of the Conservatory Counsellors, and a representative of the Y. THE MEN'S SENATE

President—First Semester	Arthur C. Poe
President—Second Semester	Anthony P. Cerveny
Vice-President	Geo. L. Evans
Secretary	Stanley F. Walker
Treasurer	Robert L. Kroc

The Men's Senate was established in 1907. It had for its purpose the securing of a closer relationship and better understanding between the Faculty and Students; and assisting of the Faculty in the adoption and maintenance of rules for the government of the students of the College. It has continually endeavored to consider questions of college interest both from the point of view of the Faculty and from the point of view of the male students.

In its subsidiary position to the Student Council it now stands as the main legislative body for men students. It has served and should continue to serve as an organization through which student sentiment finds expression.

Through its efforts this year Freshmen were able to secure caps from the merchants at a lower cost. It had charge of the Tie-up and the general program of organized competition between the two lower classes, the Annual Football Banquet, and the Cap Burning Celebration.

The Senate consists of sixteen men—the presidents of the four college classes, two representatives from each class and one from the Conservatory, the Editor-in-Chief of the Review, the president of the Varsity "O" Club, and the president of the Y. M. C. A.

Evans Poe
Clayman Leahy Burr

THE MEN'S HONOR COURT

The Men's Honor Court is an organization consisting of six members chosen by the president and approved by the Men's Senate. The president of the Men's Senate is chairman of the Honor Court. This body acts on infringements of the Honor Code among men and is authorized to make recommendations to the Discipline Committee as to the disposition of the cases under its jurisdiction.

The Honor System is of vital and continual importance to the students and upon the Honor Court falls much of the burden of making the System a success.

Secretary-Treasurer-----Norman Park

Social Chairman-----Robert Ganter

The Conservatory Men's Board is made up of all the men enrolled in the Conservatory. Officers are elected at the beginning of the school year and meetings are held when it is necessary to discuss important matters.

The main purpose of this organization is to bring the men into closer relations with each other, and to cooperate with the Women's Board of the Conservatory in any social or business activities that may concern both.

There are fifty-eight men on the board this year, showing a slight increase in membership over last year.

THE OBERLIN COLLEGE CHEST

The Oberlin College Chest is an institution whereby the students and faculty of Oberlin, by voluntary contribution, support the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., make contributions to Shansi and to the Student Friendship Fund. The purpose of the Chest is primarily to systematize the raising of benevolences.

There were approximately 1250 contributions to the Chest this year, totaling nearly $9,000. As this total was short of meeting the budget, the dependent organizations were rather seriously handicapped.

A plan is in progress to reorganize the Chest next year so that each student can have some definite voice as to which organization his money goes—thus meeting the most potent criticism of the Chest. It is felt that in doing this there will be more interest taken in the Chest, and that it will result ultimately to the benefit of the students and the various organizations.

The Women's Debate teams are the only women's organizations on the campus that meet teams from other schools in direct competition. Every year they uphold the honor of feminine Oberlin in the face of strong opposition. And this year has proved to be no exception. Ohio Wesleyan and Wooster were met, as usual, and in addition to this there were two inter-sectional debates held. In the first of these, the negative team traveled to Rockford, Illinois, and engaged in a no-decision debate there. Later a negative team from Kalamazoo came to Oberlin and met our affirmative team.

The question discussed was the establishment of a uniform divorce law throughout the United States.

Although the year was not a tremendous success from the standpoint of the amount of student interest shown in debate, Oberlin again followed the usual policy of meeting the best possible teams in this part of the country. Debates were held with Wooster, Western Reserve, Allegheny, and Ohio Wesleyan. In addition, at the close of the regular season an extra inter-sectional debate was held with New York University.

The question which the men's teams debated this year, was the "Cancellation of the Allied War Debt," involving a discussion of the morality, economic soundness, and expediency of such a policy.

It is sincerely to be hoped that this activity which has had such a prominent place on the campus for nearly forty years will not have to be dropped for lack of interest.

This year the Aeolian Literary Society has turned its interest toward contemporary literature, being particularly concerned with modern plays and novels. An effort has been made to know something of the author's life as well as of his representative work. In reading modern novels we have aimed to find those which dependable critics admire. The informal method of discussion has supplanted the stiff book-report, and the varying opinions thus obtained stimulate more of us to read. The study of modern plays has accompanied the trend of our creative writing. This has proved to be very interesting and done in the group method helps to direct individual work.

In 1835, two years after the founding of the college, the women of Oberlin formed "The Young Ladies' Association of Oberlin Collegiate Institute," for the promotion of literature and religion. In 1846 the name was changed to "The Ladies' Literary Society." Later it adopted a Latin title, "Litterae Laborum Solamen," and soon—perhaps in consequence—was known by its initials, "L. L. S." Its interests have perhaps gone through the same evolution as its name. Instead of the promotion of literature and religion, wandering ardently into political and social by-paths; it has accepted the appreciation of literature as its particular goal. By its revival, last year and this, of its old custom of occasional original compositions, it has endeavored to make this goal more concrete, and to stimulate keener and more personal interest among the members.

Are the creaky stairs of the Women's Building going to miss the tread of some of us next year? If we thought so, we should flatter ourselves. There will be others to take our places in the general clatter, for the stair-climbing brigade which is Phi Alpha Phi will continue its Monday night ascent into the hour of fellowship above-stairs until Oberlin has a new Women's Building. In years to come, though we entirely forget our labors on the contemporary British drama and modern American poetry, we shall always remember the seven o'clock rush to the right-hand room at the top of the stairs. Of course, the secretary will invariably be quite breathless when she calls the roll, and the first extemporaneous speaker will undoubtedly have to pause for wind before she begins, but, after all, what is a flight of stairs as long as it leads upward to four years of precious friendships with the best in literature and with each other?

The Phi Kappa Pi Literary Society, like the rest of the Literary Societies on the campus, holds weekly meetings at which interesting and varied programs are given by professors and by society members. This monotony is broken by occasional social meetings and informal gatherings.

In addition, the Phi Kappa Pi holds the unique distinction of sponsoring, every year, the Northwest Ohio Public Speaking Contest, in which representatives from the leading high schools of northwest Ohio compete for the honor of being adjudged the best high school speaker in the district. The honor carries with it a gold medal for the winning contestant, as well as a cup which goes to the school that he or she represents. This contest also brings Oberlin to the attention of a large number of high school students who are interested along literary and forensic lines.

The Society attempts to encourage original work on the part of the members and to act individually as friendly critics of this work. Although we scarcely expect a Shakespeare, or yet an H. L. Mencken to come from our midst, one can never tell!

THE KALDRON

The Kaldron Society had its beginning in the spring of 1925, its founders feeling the need for another men's society on the campus. Whereas during the first year the program was as wide as the curriculum itself, of late it has been somewhat narrowed.

At the first fall meeting each member told his summer's experiences. At the following meeting Richard Schaefer related some thrilling experiences at the Geneva Summer Conference. Professor Sherman was with us one evening to outline modern trends in American literature. Other meetings included a discussion on the situation in China, and a discussion of educational methods under the leadership of Professor Ward. On succeeding Monday evenings the program included a presentation of certain phases of Greek architecture by Professor Tait and phases of Gothic architecture by Professor Ward. Professor Aron has also been with us for a social evening. One week-end the society journeyed to the "Y" shack. It is ever the aim to keep the program well-rounded and inclusive.

THE CLASSICAL CLUB

A most interesting and successful year has been enjoyed by the members of the Classical Club. Varied programs, both instructive and entertaining, have added new zest to those well versed in the classics, and to the feeling of their charm to those less acquainted with them.

In the main, an attempt has been made to link the social meetings with something of real value found in the classics. The programs arranged by Mrs. Sturgis and her teachers training class, have included talks by Professor Lord on Aristophanes; and one by Mr. Tate on his experience at the British School in Athens. At Christmas time, the mystery play, directed by Mrs. Sturgis added once more its inimitable appeal. Other programs, presented by the students range from dramatizations of portions of the Iliad, and discussions of excavations to something of a lighter vein, such as Roman games and debates.

A definite advance has been made this year, leading, we believe, to even greater accomplishments in the future.

THE OBERLIN REVIEW

"WES" LAWRENCE

The Review attempted this year to put out a much larger paper than in previous years by lengthening each page two and a half inches and adding another column throughout. By using a high grade news print stock instead of the former magazine paper, the cost of printing remained about the same in spite of the increased size, and thus more advertising room was available and space for news more readily offered. With added opportunity to use advertising and with the inauguration of a new system of subscription payments the Review has managed to gain considerably on a $500 debt which was left to it by previous managements.

Taking advantage of the enlarged columns, the paper introduced many new features in the hopes of giving something more interesting, readable, and of value to its subscribers.

Just before Christmas, a special shopping edition was issued and at the close of the basketball season, an eight-page review of all fall and winter sports replaced the regular edition. And, again, complying with the faculty rule for censorship, the college was startled on April Fool's day with a yellow sheet, the "Revue" featuring many hypothetical changes in the status quo of Oberlin. This was the first attempt at such a sheet since a story was published three years ago of the murder of a faculty member by a colleague.

The office of the Review was enlarged last summer to nearly three times its former size, and it now occupies a large floor space on the mezzanine above the Tribune stock rooms. With the growing facilities, the number of students helping to put the paper out advanced to beyond fifty. A staff of boarding house representatives kept the "Oberlines" department well informed of personals about students and alumni. The staff was reorganized more on the basis of a going organization, which will help to develop year after year good material for editorial positions.

The Review belongs to the "Ohio Newspaper Association," an organization of about twenty Ohio college newspapers; and in March it entered, with the other papers of the state, into a contest, judged by representatives of the Scripps-Howard Newspaper Syndicate, to determine the best Ohio paper from the standpoint of journalistic excellence and general college interest. At this writing the judgment of the contest has not been announced.

With these revolutions in its character, now history, the Review hopes to carry on next year, continuing to add further improvements.

THE SHAFT

"Nightingale, Raphael Q., poet and novelist. Graduate of Oberlin College. His earliest printed work appeared in the Shaft." This is one of the possibilities that make a venture like the Shaft exciting. The magazine is a laboratory for all students who have a desire to write or draw or crack jokes. To the reader it offers the best work of its kind that is being done by students in Oberlin.

The Shaft differs from the old Oberlin College Magazine by the fact that it is financially self-supporting and by the fact that it is more than a literary magazine. It is a college magazine, presenting the original writing of undergraduates, discussing the less transient matters of interest to the college, and collecting the humor of Oberlin students.

The Shaft has now successfully completed its second year. The editor and business manager are elected yearly by the Student Council.

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB

The Women's Glee Club, under the direction of Mr. Wirkler, has again enjoyed a very successful season. After a series of try-outs, sixteen girls were chosen from the seventy applicants to form, with the fourteen member remaining from last season, the 1926-27 club. Fourteen of the girls are permanent members of the organization, while twelve others may be voted permanent membership after a year as temporary members. There are four associate members.

It is interesting to note that this year fourteen of the group are enrolled in the college, and sixteen in the Conservatory.

The Club gave its Annual Home Concert late in March. During the Spring Recess the Club traveled in a private Pullman car through northern Ohio and Michigan, giving concerts in Findlay, Ohio, and Monroe, Grand Rapids, Coldwater, and Detroit, Michigan. In addition the club has appeared in several northern Ohio cities this season as well as in Oberlin, where they sang in chapel, and with the men's organization in several special services.

THE MEN'S GLEE CLUB

The Oberlin College Glee Club is composed of twenty-six active members. At the beginning of the fall term, new members are selected, after careful examination by the permanent members of the club, and are given a temporary membership for one year. If at the end of this year they have been found valuable to the club they are made permanent members and are then entitled to all the privileges of the club while in school.

Every year during the Christmas holidays the club makes its annual tour. This year, 1926-1927, the trip was of a rather local nature, taking in cities of Ohio and Pennsylvania only. The club made a short trip before Christmas giving concerts in Willard, O., Marion, O., Mansfield, O., Orville, O., and New London, O.

On December 27, the club again assembled, at Canton, O., and entered the private Pullman car "Boston," in which it traveled and lived until the end of the trip. While en route in the "Boston" the club gave concerts in Canton, O., Warren, O., Uhrichsville, O., Wellsville, O., Columbiana, Pa., New Brighton, Pa., and Pittsburgh, Pa.

One week after its return from the trip, the club made itself distinctive on the Oberlin campus by wearing black tams. Old members of the club feel that these have proved to be the most successful distinctions in several years.

The story of the development of the Oberlin College Band since its reorganization in the spring of 1926 shows very clearly what can be done to bring an organization to its proper place on the campus. At that time the directorship of the band was given to Dr. W. R. Gregg, of Oberlin; and due to his competent leadership the band was soon able to work under practically complete student direction.

Over one thousand dollars has been invested in uniforms and instruments. Navy-blue broadcloth capes with brilliant crimson and gold lining were first secured, to which were added, later, attractive red jackets trimmed with gold. New Ludwig bass and snare drums were purchased as well as a new tuba. The money for these various purchases was raised largely through the presentation of three benefit motion pictures.

A list of the activities carried on by the band during this period shows that the splendid support given to the organization by the students and faculty was well deserved. Constant practice developed the band into an organization capable of arousing pep at a football game or of presenting a classical concert program. The activities for the scholastic year of 1926 included appearing at the "Big Six" track meet in May; presenting an open air concert in June; taking part in the "Illumination Night" festivities; and, for the first time in the history of Oberlin, playing for the Academic Parade. This year the band played at each of the home football games as well as at Mt. Union and Reserve. They were present at each of the chapel pep meetings. Soon after the close of the football season they presented, in Finney Chapel, the third indoor concert in the history of the band. When the basketball season started, the band again appeared in its usual role of pep-maker for the Oberlin athletic teams; and at the beginning of the second semester presented the music for one chapel service. Since such progress has been made during the past year, it is the hope of each member of the band that future years will see a continuation of this development.

FRESHMAN GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

Early in the fall some of the little freshmen who had the nerve tried out for the Freshman Girls' Glee Club and those that passed the test soon became organized under the leadership of Doris Simonds, '27, of the Conservatory. Magrieta Livingston was elected president; Frances Hubbard, secretary-treasurer; and Virginia Thatcher, social chairman of the club.

Several times the glee club has appeared in public. It sang first at an all-college dance, which was held in the fall at Warner Gym, presenting at that time two numbers. Again in February the club sang several numbers for a Y. W. C. A. meeting. On February twenty-second, at the Washington Memorial Service in the Chapel, the glee club sang two numbers with the varsity glee clubs and the Freshman Men's Glee Club. Although the club has not been making many public appearances, it has been working faithfully and has been getting a great deal of enjoyment out its meetings.

THE FRESMAN MEN'S GLEE CLUB

The Freshman Men's Glee Club has the enviable reputation of being the first yearling club of its nature to appear in public. The "Crimson Warblers" have presented their repertoire on no less than twelve occasions, before audiences ranging from sedate church congregations to co-eds in "robe de la nuit"—separated, of course, from the songsters by stone walls and second story windows. The club, thirty strong, made its debut last fall at the Freshmen Dad's Banquet and was given a hearty reception. The same evening a place on the program of the college mixer was reserved for them and a second triumph was recorded. The first year singers were next scheduled at the Methodist Church, where a return engagement was filled in the spring, and concerts at the Commons and the Masonic Lodge followed in rapid order. The informal programs at the Freshman and Junior Stags, formal presentations at the Exchange Club, Business College, and the United Church represent some of the more recent engagements of the organization. The club joined the varsity organization in making the chapel ring with the "Recessional" on Washington's birthday.

DRAMATIC ASSOCIATION

Under the guidance of Professor Philip D. Sherman, the past year has been an active one. The club is organized into House Groups, each group headed by a leader who selects and casts one-act plays. The fall is spent in preparing these group plays for presentation, and in the spring, a series of closed productions are given to the members of the association. These plays are used also to fill out-of-town programs. This year the club has answered more invitations for such programs than ever before.

Try-outs for the two annual three-act plays are open to the entire association. For the Commencement play of June, 1926, "As You Like It" was presented, the first Shakespearean production in fifteen years. The version used was the Sothern-Marlowe script, and a natural setting was an innovation in staging. Under Mr. Wirkler's guidance a double chorus of twenty picked men added novelty, using the original Elizabethan songs and music taken from Henry Purcell's seventeenth century "Book of Airs."

For the fall Home Production, "Expressing Willie," an ultra-modern comedy by Rachel Crothers was produced in Finney Chapel on November 27. The following week, December 3rd and 4th, the play was given at the Little Theatre of Western Reserve University where the players were the guests of the Sock and Buskin Club. Again, on February 19th the players appeared at Central High School in Akron, Ohio, and were cordially received.

"In Service For the Girls of the World" is the motto one finds under the blue and white triangle and upon looking at the pictures on the opposite page one might be tempted to add "Giving the Girls of the World a Chance for Service." To develop genuine friendliness is one of the fundamental purposes of the Y. W. C. A. In giving Oberlin girls an opportunity to make friends with the little tots at the Children's Home, with the old people of the village and with foreign girls on the campus, the purpose is only partially fulfilled. The Association also seeks to carry out this aim in a more intangible way:—by creating certain sound attitudes toward life which will serve as a worth-while basis for establishing these friendships and meeting situations that call for strength and definiteness of purpose.

Y. M. C. A.

It is not to be expected that every student living in the sheltered community of a college should value equally the spiritual forces he finds there. Many place no value at all upon "things of the spirit." Others are tireless in their efforts to test the worth of religion and to plumb the depths of their own personalities. Out of this very situation has grown the need for the student Y. M. C. A. with its sincere purpose of taking the life of Jesus seriously as an ideal for practical, experimental living.

The Oberlin Association makes no effort to foist ideals of any kind upon the students. Rather, it functions continually through its fellowship and social service program to inspire students to find for themselves the meanings of Christian principles. The success or failure of this type of enterprise lies so deeply buried in the personal consciousness of the individual that it cannot be adequately measured.

FORUM CLUB

To meet the need for a social science club the Forum Club was formed in March, 1926, adopting as its aim "to study and arouse interest in social, political, and economic problems." The club consists not only of majors, but of all those interested in the social sciences. The weekly meetings are devoted to the presentation of modern problems or events by members of the faculty or outside speakers, and each talk is followed by discussion.

The Forum Club with the cooperation of the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., the Kaldron Society, and the Dunbar Forum put on an Industrial Conference, November 5 to 7, in which an attempt was made to study, impartially, the relations of labor and capital by choosing speakers to represent all phases of the problem. The speakers for the conference were: Mr. Albert Coyle, Mr. Doolittle, Miss Elizabeth Magee, Mr. Cornell Hewson, Mr. Max Hayes, and Mr. Jerome Davis.

Other speakers brought to Oberlin by the Forum Club in cooperation with other organizations and addressing open meetings held under the auspices of the club, were: Kenneth Lindsay, of London, who also spoke in chapel on the British General Strike; and Harry F. Ward, of Union Theological Seminary, who addressed a combined meeting of the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. on the subject, "America's Responsibility for the Situation in China."

THE MATHEMATICS CLUB

The Mathematics Club meets every two weeks throughout the school year. The first part of the meeting is always spent in a social half hour. Students and faculty here have the chance of personal acquaintance that they do not get in their class room.

After satisfying ourselves with tea and wafers, we proceed to satisfy our starving souls with mathematical pie. Nothing seems too large or too small for consideration. We pass from the orbital motion of the atom to the vastness of celestial measurements. Nothing is too practical to be void of theory, so we have applications in mechanics, architecture, engineering, and economic problems. But we do not get confused and think that we are discussing lumber problems when logs are mentioned. We know that "sign" and "sine" are not two ways of spelling the same word. And who besides a mathematician can ever be sure he doesn't mean eclipse when he says ellipse? We discuss with ease not only the fourth dimension, but the fifth and sixth. Infinity and imaginaries are very real to us. Everything complex is made simple through short cuts and ingenious devices. We even have resort to the music of the spheres for we have harmonic properties always with us. And most interesting of all we learn of the little red bugs. Some have white arrows on their backs and others haven't.

The Math Club is a liberal education in itself, and sooner or later we all hope to arrive at a "modicum of mathematical maturity."

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS

This has been in many respects an unusual year for the French Club. The director, Professor Jameson, who does so much with his personality to make the meetings successful, has been away for the entire time. On the other hand, new material and new points of view have been brought to us and generously contributed by Professor Caskie.

The Club has been especially fortunate during the year in having a number of very good speakers from outside, and from the college itself to talk in French on subjects of interest. Professor Michenot, who is engaged in teaching the Alsatian children to speak the tongue of their grandfathers, spoke on Armistice Day, interpreting La Fontaine and interpolating running comments of his own. Professor Alfred Shinz, of Smith College, addressed the "Cercle" March 10, and was greatly appreciated. Both these lectures were open to the public.

An organization of this kind should do its best to foster a love for, and accomplishment in, the language of the nation it represents, and to present the best phases of its culture and civilization. In this the French Club has succeeded this year, and will succeed in future years under its able faculty leadership.

LA TERTULIA

La Tertulia has become an essential part of the Spanish department. It is composed of any who have studied or are now studying Spanish and who are interested in it. Although primarily a student organization, it has been helped greatly this year by Professor Barr's interest in it.

The programs have consisted chiefly of papers in Spanish, by students, on topics of interest concerning Spain and our Spanish-speaking neighbor, South America. Two lectures on South America, illustrated by lantern slides and South American articles of interest, gave a clearer idea of that great country, while easy Spanish games facilitated the use of Spanish. Several short plays presented by the Club and the department have given an opportunity for students to direct drama as well as to act.

There has been the usual increase in membership and, although the actual attendance may not have been much greater, the interest of each individual member has far surpassed that of previous years. The number of those who, by attendance and participation in the meetings, have earned pins this year has more than doubled the record of any other year.

COSMOPOLITAN CLUB

The Cosmopolitan Club is an organization which attempts to give expression to the international aspect of the college. Its membership is open to all who wish to make friends with students of other races and nations. The one purpose of the club is to create a cosmopolitan attitude toward all life; that attitude which views all activities of life, whether they be social, political, economic, religious, or scientific not in a narrow, provincial, sectarian, or limited manner, but rather, so far as possible, in that broad, all inclusive, world wide, and even universal manner. The phases of this Cosmopolitan attitude most strongly emphasized are freedom from race prejudice, and the placing of the interests of humanity at large above that of any single race, state, or nation.

The Club has its weekly meetings, which consist largely of social parties, talks by professors, discussions by the students on some topic of interest, and occasionally a talk by a prominent outside speaker. The one big annual event of the year is International Night, which occurs sometime in the Spring.

The Club cooperates with other organizations on the campus, with a similar aim, through the World Friendship Cooperating Committee.

CHINESE CLUB

Twenty-one Chinese students in the college, one in the Kindergarten Training School, and one in Oberlin High School have been enrolled in the club this year.

Business and social meetings have been held regularly once a month, and every other Sunday the members have met as a discussion group. The club has cooperated with the Cosmopolitan club and the World Fellowship Committee in all the year's activities.

The Oberlin club is affiliated with the Chinese Students' Alliance of North America. Its purpose is to work always for the welfare of the Chinese students in this country.

JAPANESE CLUB

Red and white, purple and yellow, we see countless kinds of flowers in the field of Spring under the protection of God; similarly, various kinds of men guided by Divine love. But strange to say, we see country against country, race against race; they mutually exclude, hate and fight.

Oh, our mother Oberlin, thou hast precluded the distinction between man and woman, white and colored, upper and lower. Many young men from all parts of the world have been embraced by thy arms. They were kindled by thy lofty ideal.

We children from the Far East have cherished tightly thy message; to carry it across the Ocean.

Now, let us be thy strong messengers and fight boldly to realize thy great ideal.

FACULTY

C. Winfred Savage
Professor of Physical Education and Director of Athletics.

Whitelaw R Morrison
Professor of Physical Education and Director of the Gymnasium.

Paul N. MacEachron
Associate Professor of Physical Education.

Guy C. Throner, Assistant Professor of Physical Education

Albert E. Lumley, Instructor in Physical Education

Lawrence T. Rogers, Instructor in Physical Education

The constantly increasing demand for Oberlin graduates in Physical Education, a demand which confines itself to no particular part of the country, is an indication of the esteem in which Oberlin methods are held.

The chief aim of the department is the fostering of a manly spirit, the inculcation of those physical qualities of endurance, courage, and self reliance which make for better citizenship. Further it endeavors to teach the value of cooperation and coordination as factors necessary to society.

Health, though not a prime object, is coming more and more to be insured for those taking gymnasium exercise.

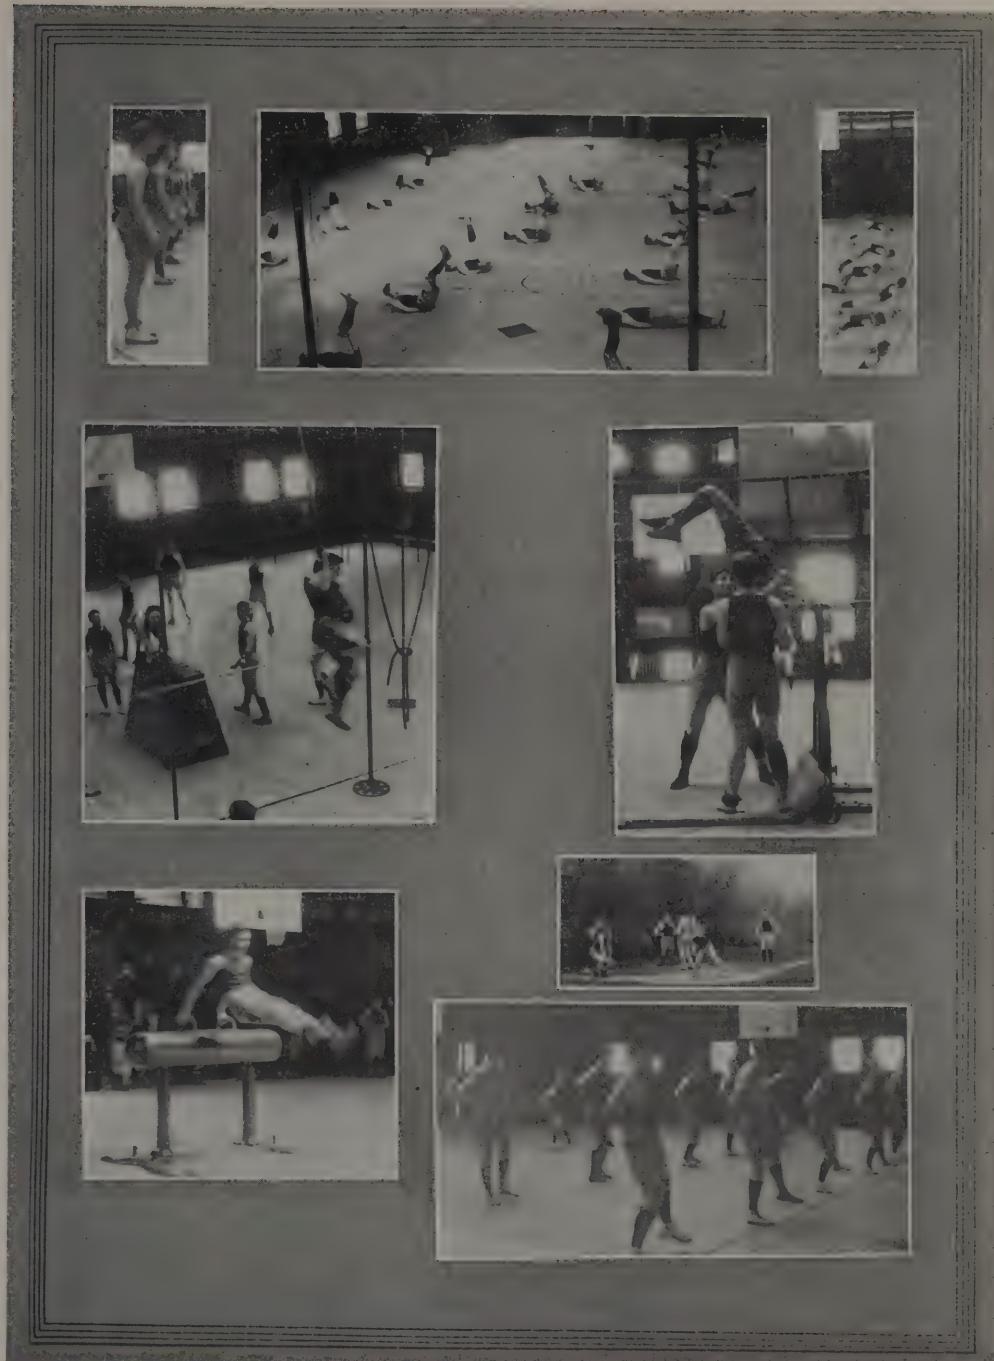

The Sophomore and Freshman classes are given such drills in calisthenics, boxing, games, dancing and apparatus work as will prepare them for participation in sports after graduation.

In the advanced classes the instruction narrows itself to more complicated apparatus work.

It is to be hoped that within a short time a new gymnasium for men will be constructed nearer the athletic field. One of the desires of the department is to conduct as much as possible of the work out of doors. The present lack of a swimming pool is unfortunate, for it is felt that there should be an opportunity for aquatic sport for those who so desire.

Oberlin has always maintained a high place in national Physical Education. She has believed that the true ideal is the "mens sanum in sana corpore," and it is creditable to remark of her curriculum, that it does not omit training for the body as well as for the mind.

THE VARSITY "O" CLUB

In the past the Oberlin Varsity Club has been a non-functioning body, simply a name given to those who had been awarded a varsity letter in athletics. But within the last two years the personnel of the group has changed, and with this change has come a truly organized "O" Club with a definite club program. Through this program the organization endeavors to be self-supporting, to keep the graduate members in touch with the athletic relations of their Alma Mater, to interest the high school athlete in the advantages that Oberlin has to offer, and to create a club spirit among the men of the group.

The club membership averages about thirty-five men each year, consisting of the best talent in the five intercollegiate sports maintained by the college. The club holds at least one meeting a month in the clubroom in the Men's Building, and at this time the plans for the future are discussed and decided upon.

During the past year the following activities have been carried out under the auspices of this club: the printing and distribution of football programs, social gatherings for both new and old members of the group, the furnishing of the club room, an annual dance, and the publishing of the "O" Club News, a paper carrying "first hand information of Oberlin athletics to those who have had the honor of representing their Alma Mater in intercollegiate sports." This was published four times and sent to over five hundred graduate members. Other activities include the entertainment of high school teams and individual athletes at various contests, promotion of the Glen Gray memorial basketball game, and finally the production of the annual club show.

THE CHEERLEADERS

Much can be said for this year's cheerleaders. All were new at the start of the season, but as soon as they got together they made a go of things, a success of the organized cheer leading. But the functions of good leading go farther than this, and in this other line the "boys" also shone. The other part of their work was—sponsoring the football pep meetings, originating new yells, providing entertainment between halfs at the basketball games, leading all college gatherings at victory bonfires, and keeping the general morale of the rooters always at a high pitch.

The receptive mood of the students, the cooperation of the band, and the hard and faithful work of our cheerleaders combined to make this a successful cheering season.

COACH MAC EACHRON

Coming here from Grinnell college in 1925 Paul MacEachron met with prompt success both on the athletic field and in the class room.

Mr. MacEachron knows men; hence his success. A keen student of human nature, he always couples with this insight a warm sympathy and generous regard which wins instant response from all with whom he comes into contact. He inspires respect. That's why his boys work—they work for "Mac." Varsity athletics are no pink tea affairs. It takes work to satisfy the school; it takes grit; and above all it takes brains. Too often, in order to secure the best results, a coach must resort to harsh measures. He must sternly drive his men in order to round them into shape; but "Mac" was stern without the harshness, and he drove without the sting of the lash.

Strictly speaking MacEachron is not a stranger in Oberlin. Back in 1915-16 he was head football and basketball coach at the Oberlin Academy. When that institution disbanded, he went to China and for six years was principal of Grinnell in China. He was recalled by his Alma Mater to act as dean of men and freshman football and basketball coach. After serving in this capacity for three years, he came here. Oberlin is fortunate to have secured Paul MacEachron

CAPTAIN ZWICK

One reason for this season's success. A hard and aggressive man on offense, a bear on defense, and a leader of exceptional merit.

CAPTAIN-ELECT WILDER

A born football player, capable of holding his position against any in the Conference, and ready to add more victories to Oberlin's long list.

FOOTBALL GAMES

BALDWIN WALLACE

Baldwin Wallace displayed the same fight which has always characterized her football teams, and held Oberlin scoreless until the middle of the third quarter. Then a beautiful pass from Poe to Jamison gave Oberlin its only touchdown. Burr added the extra point by a dropkick. A wet and muddy field checked the attack of each team, and straight football was used throughout the game.

MARIETTA

Coach MacEachron used his entire squad in swamping Marietta in the second game. The initial score came in the first period when an opponent back was forced to kick from behind his own goal, and in so doing fumbled a bad pass from the center, scoring two points for Oberlin. In the same period a steady march down the field placed the Crimson and Gold in scoring position, and Wickenden passed to Ballard for the first touchdown. In the third quarter Poe and Hansbary took the ball from Marietta's thirty-five yard line to the three yard line in three plays. Burr then crashed through center for the second touchdown, and added another point with a dropkick. Soon after the next kickoff, Hansbary tore around end for a third counter. The last touchdown was scored in the final quarter, when Hosfield broke away and crossed the goal line untouched.

MOUNT UNION

Oberlin's first real test was Mount Union at Alliance. It was a case of two evenly matched teams, Oberlin winning because she had just a little more of the old "zip" than did the Purple.

For two quarters the heavy Mount backfield ripped its way through the Oberlin forward wall, only to be held in the pinches. Its only score came in the first period, when Burr, kicking from behind his own goal, stepped outside the end zone, awarding Mount a safety.

At the opening of the second half Oberlin found herself, and from this time on played on the offensive. The Crimson scored when Ballard broke through and blocked a Mount Union punt, and Jones recovered the ball behind the goal line for a touchdown. Burr promptly booted the ball between the uprights for an extra point. As the game ended Oberlin made a first down on Mount's four yard line, and another score seemed inevitable.

RESERVE

Reserve had already been picked by the dopesters to run rough shod over Oberlin, when the annual "Migration Day" came around. It is true that the Pioneers did outplay Oberlin as regards number of yards gained. They tore through and around her forward wall for twenty first downs while Oberlin was making four. But the Yeomen out-generalized and out-fought the Pioneers, and when the one chance to score came, they seized upon it.

The first part of the game was a punting duel between Phypers and Burr, with Burr having the advantage. Late in the quarter a bad pass from center caused a Reserve fumble, and Zwick recovered for Oberlin. After unsuccessful line plays, a pass from Poe to Ballard made the lone touchdown count for Oberlin. Burr kicked goal.

Reserve threatened several times later, but Oberlin pulled together at the crucial points, and staved off any scoring, until the last minute of play. Here Oberlin checked Reserve on the four yard line, and then to guard against any last minute break for Reserve, Wickenden downed the ball behind the goal line for a safety.

ROCHESTER

Hastings

Oberlin's only intersectional contest resulted in an easy win for the Crimson and Gold. The light Rochester team showed lots of fight, but lacked the experience to cope with their older rivals. Oberlin used forward passing almost exclusively, and all three scores were made via the aerial route. Jones and Ballard were the outstanding stars of the game, easily stopping all the plays started their way, and each contributing a touchdown.

CASE

Playing in a cold drizzly rain and on a field ankle deep in mud, the Bicyclists slipped over a single touchdown while the Scientists failed to score. The small score does not indicate Oberlin's true margin of superiority, for the home team clearly and completely outplayed the Case eleven.

The score came in the first period. Chuck Wilder recovered a Case fumble, and two plays later Fleming circled the end for a long gain. He was brought down on the half yard line, and from here sneaked it over on the next play. Fleming and Ballard played the best game for Oberlin.

MIAMI

After running up a record of twenty-two consecutive victories, Oberlin lost to Miami, the only defeat in three years. It was simply the old story of the aggressive and determined underdog whipping the overconfident champion. Miami fought like men possessed, and played heads-up ball from start to finish, and Oberlin could not come out of her lethargy in time to avoid defeat.

Stryker was the man who contributed most to Oberlin's downfall. In the second quarter he received a pass and ran fifteen yards for a touchdown. In the third period he fell back to punt, but seeing an opening he ran eighty-five yards for a second touchdown. Wholwender kicked goal after each marker. The Yeomen played well but lacked the drive which they had shown in previous games. They made nine first downs to Miami's five, but they had not the scoring punch necessary to do the trick.

WOOSTER

Oberlin proved that she could take a beating and still come back and be a winner when she met the undefeated Wooster team in the final game of the season. The Crimson and Gold decisively outclassed her Presbyterian opponents, thereby shattering Wooster's hopes for a Conference championship.

The highly touted Wooster backs could not crack the Oberlin forward wall, failing to make a single first down through that line. The Oberlin backs consistently ripped and tore through their opponent's line for a total of ten first downs. Near the end of the second quarter Fleming punted to Wooster's five yard line. On the first play Fox kicked for Wooster but was hurried by the Oberlin men, and the ball went out of bounds on the seven yard line. This was the big chance, and after three tryrs Poe took the ball over for the only score of the game. The playing of Poe, Hansbary, and Hosfield stood out in this game and contributed much to the yardage made by the Oberlin backfield.

THE FOOTBALL BANQUET

In the first game of the football season the Yeomen team was weak at the start, but strong at the finish. This was easily understood in 1925 when the team was known to be a green one, but why should it be true this year with a veteran squad at the start of the season? The answer to this is that no team is stronger than its line, and in this department there were only three men with varsity experience available. Three other regulars and all of the reserve linemen had to be developed. In the first game the line was ragged and ineffective, and it was all the veteran backs could do to score one touchdown. By the end of the season this same line was playing great football. In the last three games only three first downs were made through the line, one in each game.

The schedule was a stiff one. Seven of the eight teams played were stronger than they had been in 1925. Oberlin with her undefeated eleven was a special challenge to them all. As a result of this we played them all at their peak. The fact that every one had an off day the Saturday following the Oberlin game indicates that they "pointed for us hard."

It was a season of hard earned victories, a season that showed steady improvement from first to last, the Miami game being the sole exception.

BASKETBALL CALENDAR

ALBION

JANUARY 4 Albion repeated last year's victory over the Yeomen. The first and last quarters were the only ones in which Oberlin showed class, and even here her spurts did not last for any length of time.

HIRAM

JANUARY 8 With a complete reversal of form from that displayed against Albion, Oberlin beat Hiram in her first Conference game. Ballard's guarding featured the defense, while Tessenvitz led the others for scoring honors.

AKRON

JANUARY 13 Swept off its feet in the first quarter, Oberlin lost to Akron. The second half was a different story, but the first half had given Akron too much of a lead for the Yoemen to overcome.

Leahy

Tessenvitz

Montie

CASE

JANUARY 22 Case triumphed over the Yoemen in a closely contested game. The scoring of Fleming and McPhee featured, while the former also effectively stopped Doll, Case's scoring ace. It was evident that Oberlin's floor work was handicapped by the very small court.

RESERVE

JANUARY 29 "Bill" West and four others defeated the Yeomen. Oberlin, led by Fleming and Leahy, twice cut the Clevelanders' lead to two points, but each time Reserve managed to check the spurt and pull ahead again.

ROCHESTER

FEBRUARY 5 The invaders from Rochester played supreme basketball and so defeated the Oberlinites. As in other games, Fleming seemed to be the whole team, and copped the scoring honors.

BALDWIN-WALLACE

FEBRUARY 8 Against Baldwin-Wallace, Oberlin expected a victory. But the opponents shot to an early lead which they maintained to the end. This was the fifth loss in a row for the Yoemen.

Burnett

Kiracofe

Stocker

MIAMI

FEBRUARY 10 In a one-sided game Miami defeated Ballard and his men. Oberlin came back the second half and played much better ball, but even then Miami lengthened their lead through superior floor work.

DE PAUW

FEBRUARY 11 Oberlin pushed DePauw to the limit until the last quarter, when the defense crumbled and gave the Hoosiers a well-earned triumph. Montie, Leahy, and Tessenvitz played the best for the Crimson.

ALUMNI

FEBRUARY 21 Varsity won the Gray Memorial game from the Alumni. The game was a fast one, contrary to most alumni clashes, and the varsity was forced to the limit to win. Fleming, Leahy, and Tessenvitz bore the brunt of the tallying.

WOOSTER

FEBRUARY 24 Wooster had a fairly easy time in trimming Oberlin. The half ended with a nine-point Wooster advantage, and in the latter session they had everything their own way.

OHIO NORTHERN

FEBRUARY 26 Oberlin played a driving and consistent game, and won from Ohio Northern. Tessenvitz, Leahy, and Fleming led in scoring, but all of the Yoemen contributed to the final total.

DENISON

MARCH 5

Oberlin left the floor at half time with a one-point lead. But in the next part the local's defense cracked, after Ballard had been forced out of the game, and the Big Red ran up a large score. Fleming and Leahy were the driving forces for Oberlin.

MOUNT UNION

MARCH 8

After allowing Mount Union an eleven-point lead in the first half, the Oberlin boys staged a comeback in the latter part of the contest, and came within two points of tying the score. Five Seniors, Ballard, Tessenvitz, Leahy, Montie, and Burnett, appeared for the last time on the basketball court for Oberlin.

THE SEASON

Thus, for a second consecutive year varsity basketball had a disastrous season. Last year this might have been explained on the ground of an inexperienced team. But this year all were veterans at the game, and at the start were "doped" to finish away up on the Conference list. However, as the games passed, the team failed to play with the consistent steadiness that such a team should have, and displayed flashes of form only in spots. But the men are to be commended for their steady plugging throughout such a season. This fight was due in part to the coach, and in part to the loyalty of the men themselves.

Next year Coach MacEachron is again faced with the task of building up an entirely new team. With the exception of Fleming, all of the old varsity men graduate, leaving many places to be filled. However, Fleming is one of the best players that Oberlin has had for some time, and if, with him as the nucleus, an even playing team can be produced, the outlook will be bright. Some valuable material from this year's Freshman squad will be available, and with this MacEachron should do the trick.

COACH THRONER

Mr. Guy C. Throner came to us from Virginia in 1924, where for four years he had been state supervisor of physical education. Mr. Throner is an Oberlin alumnus, well remembered by former Oberlin students for his athletic prowess. While in college he earned for himself an enviable reputation, and, upon graduating in 1914, entered the teaching profession as a director of physical education in a Minneapolis, Minnesota, high school. Since that time he has met with unusual success, returning finally to his Alma Mater.

Jolly and good natured, Mr. Throner yet has about him an authoritative manner which produces results in the class room. His physical education classes are models of military efficiency and perfection, his exercises standards for healthy and clean body development.

Baseball is Mr. Throner's particular hobby. Each Spring finds him out on the diamond putting the varsity baseball candidates through their paces. In spite of the brief season and the usual Oberlin weather, his teams have ranked high in Ohio Conference standings.

THE SEASON

A great deal more interest was shown in baseball this season than in previous years, both by the greater number of candidates who reported for practice, and by the general attitude of the student body. Contrary to predictions, the varsity batting was very good, six regulars hitting between .300 and .464, but erratic fielding cut down their effectiveness. A brilliant future is looked for. Coach Throner has a wealth of material with which to start the new season, and with which to work in shaping up a well proportioned team for the 1927 campaign. Directed by his capable and effective coaching, the team should bring a Conference baseball championship to Oberlin.

COACH LUMLEY

Mr. Albert E. Lumley, newest and youngest member of the Oberlin physical education department, already has won for himself a place in the hearts of Oberlin students and faculty members alike. His generous sympathy and friendliness attracts many to him, while his enthusiasm and fine example are an inspiration to his men.

Mr. Lumley, who hails from Michigan State Normal College, has complete charge of all interclass and intramural athletics as well as varsity cross country and track. In both of these latter sports his teams have gained remarkable successes during the one year he has been at Oberlin. A championship in cross country and a fourth place in the Ohio Big Six track and field classics are worthy achievements.

His most important work, however, and one in which he takes particular pride, is that of general sunshine dispenser among Oberlin men at play. Mr. Lumley believes firmly in the principle of athletic games for everyone. It is he who is responsible for providing clean and healthy play to as many Oberlin men as possible.

1928

Page two hundred twenty-six

1928

O. I. A. A. MEET

For the first time in her history, Oberlin entertained the contestants, coaches, and officials of the "Big Six" track meet. The "Big Six," now enlarged so as to include eighteen Ohio colleges, sent 276 athletes to compete for their schools in the twenty-fourth annual track meet of the Ohio Intercollegiate Athletic Association. Athletics Director C. W. Savage and Secretary G. M. Jones were the personal hosts for the meet, and nothing lacked. Mr. H. F. Passini of Cleveland, referee, and Mr. H. P. Swain of Columbus, the official Big Six starter for the past fifteen years, helped the cinder speedsters away on their course around the track, while Oberlin furnished a perfect day, a fast track and a clocklike program. The stadium furnished ample seating facilities for the 4,000 persons who were on hand to witness the track classic of the year.

Miami, boasting one of the greatest track squads ever seen in Ohio, won the games almost without competition. She had a strong, well-balanced team with such premier men as Sharkey, Emery, and Weil. The race for second place in the meet was not decided until the end, when the crippled Wesleyan squad nosed out Case by a point and a half. Case was very strong in the field events, and accounted for most of her points there. Oberlin was notably weak in these events but finished a satisfactory fourth.

The prettiest races of the day were the mile, half-mile, and 440 run. Ohio records for all three of these went banging at the hands of unexpected winners.

Emery of Miami expecting to win the mile, tried six times in the last two laps to pass Parsons of Oberlin, who was in the lead. Each try "Bud" met spurt for spurt and Emery was forced to be content with second place. Time—4m. 23.8s.

In the 440, "Dutch" Harrar, considered the favorite, took a surprise trimming at the hands of Stoughton of Otterbein, who ran Harrar out in the home stretch and set a new Ohio 440 mark. Time—49.4s.

But Harrar certainly came back in the half mile. This event had been conceded to Weil of Miami by the dopesters, but after letting the others set the pace for over half of the distance, "Dutch" flashed forward from somewhere back in the crowded field and flew ahead of the leaders only five yards from the tape. Time—1m. 57.6s.

Sharkey of Miami, one of the greatest sprinters this state has ever seen, led the 100 and 220-yard dashes. In both of these he set new Conference records. And in both of these he had but one rival, that being Oberlin's "Art" Engle, who pressed Sharkey hard in each race and who was close by at the finish.

THE FINAL SCORES

CROSS COUNTRY

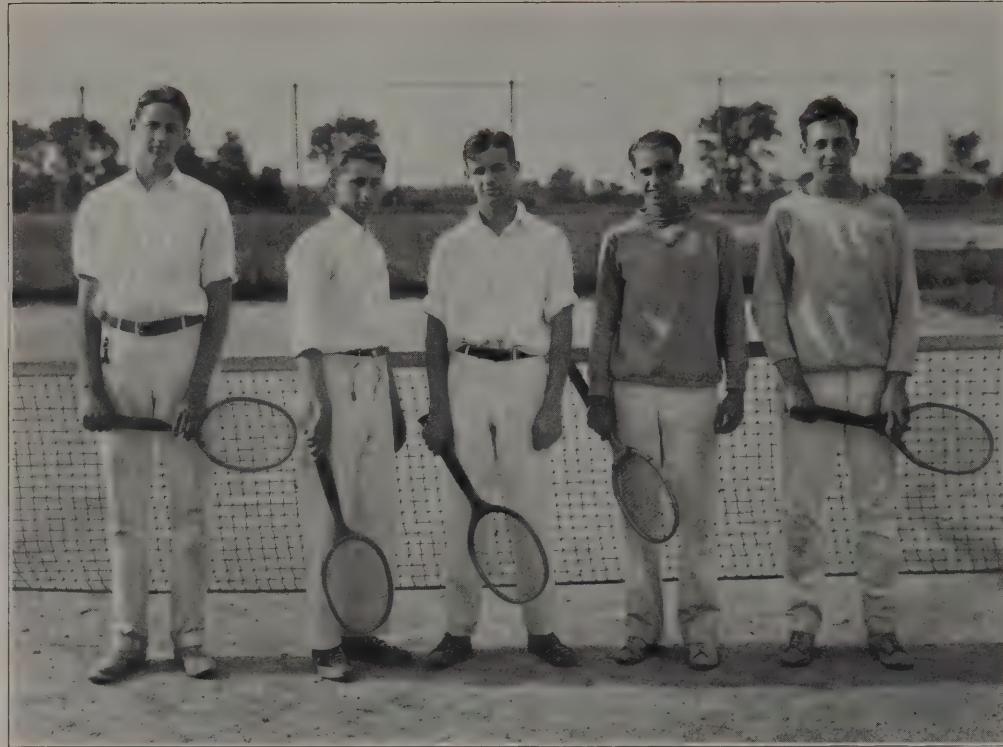

Several seasons ago the interest in cross country running was revived, and now each succeeding year finds a greater number of men out for this sport. In this way the past season was no exception, and Coach Lumley had over seventy-five men working out daily under his supervision.

But in spite of this wealth of material there was only one experienced man available. This was Captain McKelvey, the lone survivor from the championship team of 1925. Brooks had had a little varsity experience and he was left to bear the brunt of the work. Graham and Lampman showed up to advantage as the season advanced.

In the first meet, Ypsilanti, undefeated for three years, had a comparatively easy time defeating Lumley's men. The following week the Case outfit was led in by four of the Yoemen, assuring victory to the Crimson. November 6 found the team at Oxford for the state meet, but here they could gain no more than fifth place. The Reserve meet helped a little, for here the entire Oberlin team finished before a single Pioneer. But in the final meet of the season the Woosterites won out against the local team, even though Brooks was the first to finish.

Such a season's record made by a group of untried and inexperienced men is far from being depressing. Next year these men will be trained runners, and with some good new material to fill in the weak places, Lumley's harriers should lead every field across the finishing line.

INTRAMURAL ATHLETICS

Many colleges subscribe to the statement "athletics for the many as against athletics for the few," but few back up their plan with as complete an intra-mural program of sports as does Oberlin. Coach Lumley is at the head of the work, and within the two years that he has been on the campus, has built up this side of the athletic program to a higher point than has ever been reached before. The classes have cooperated well, each being represented by an elected athletic manager, who with Coach Lumley make the rules for participation in the various sports, and to whom all protests must be made. There is a similar governing body for the teams in the house leagues, and the winning class and house for the whole season receives a perpetual trophy cup engraved with their name.

SIGMA DELTA PSI

A recent addition to this program has been the competition for membership in Sigma Delta Psi, a national honorary athletic fraternity. Active membership is given to those who pass a set of varied athletic tests, all of which require a high degree of skill. At the present time over two hundred have attempted one or more of these tests, and of these about a hundred have passed. As yet no one has completed the whole set of requirements, but it is to be hoped that soon Oberlin will be represented in this organization.

FRESHMAN ATHLETICS

By using the same spirit and fight that enabled it to win the annual tie-up, the class of 1930 has taken an enviable position in the intra-mural athletic program. When Coach Throner issued the call for football over forty men responded and received equipment. From these men he developed a championship team, as the scores of the games will show. Credit is due them for the cooperation that they gave to the varsity in scrimmage practice.

In the other Fall sports the Frosh teams were also successful. The cross country squad came through with a second place, and the tennis men took a third. The speed-ball championship also went to this class, the team playing a snappy passing game.

The Winter sport program shows the first year team leading in basketball and track. The latter outfit, coached by Beazian, won both the Soph-Frosh and the inter-class meets by large scores, while the basketball team went through the season without a single defeat. Coach Throner produced this championship squad from a record turnout of over sixty men. The class was also represented in handball and volleyball. The outlook for a successful season in outdoor track, tennis and baseball is very good.

The class of 1930 can well be proud of the men that represented it in the different sports and in the record that they have made for themselves and for their class.

FOOTBALL

This season produced a Freshman team that had no trouble at all in walking off with the class championship. The Sophomores and the Seniors were easy for them, and they were able to beat out the Juniors by a lone touchdown. The Sophs were on the bottom of the heap, but managed to pull a surprise and hold the third-year men to a scoreless tie, thus spoiling the latter's record. The Seniors beat the Sophomores for their only win of the season. The Freshman-Sophomore post-season game was won by the second year men, but this result did not affect the regular intra-mural standings. In spite of the wet fields the games were closely contested, and were watched with interest by many spectators.

BASKETBALL

The Freshmen won their second championship in inter-class competition, when they waded through the whole basketball schedule without a single reversal. The fact that four of their men were chosen for the first all-class team gives further evidence of their worth. The three other teams were closely matched, and ended the season in a triple tie for second place. Interest in the games was maintained throughout the whole series, and there were several good-sized crowds out to watch the teams perform.

INDOOR TRACK

The number of men that regularly reported for practice throughout the whole sea-son gives proof of the interest which Coach Lumley has created in this sport within the last two years. One year ago there were just an even hundred out for practice, the greatest number in indoor track history; but this year about thirty more participated. All of these found plenty of capable and willing coaching on hand. Lumley handled the weight men and sprinters; Williams, one of Oberlin's greatest track men, worked with the distance runners, while Bezazian gave helpful advice to the Fresh-men.

The schedule was also the most pretentious that has ever been attempted. February 11 found the Sophs trailing the Frosh in a dual scrap, while just two weeks later the first year men led all the classes at the finish of the inter-class meet. Following the Wooster meet, the inter-house clash took place. The high spot in this session was a new pole vault record of 11 feet 4½ inches, set by Jones.

On March 12 we met Wooster in a dual meet on the home track. Although the visitors led at the start, Oberlin managed to pull ahead to finish first, with a score of 63-42. It was by far the most successful of Oberlin's indoor sessions.

WOMEN'S PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Oberlin's Physical Education Department for women is nationally known to be of good repute, and is one of which the school may well be proud. Its ideal is physical development for all girls, and through gymnasium classes and sports this ideal is being attained.

No introduction is needed to those members of the staff whose instruction and friendship have been so valued and highly prized in former years. But to the newcomers in the department we wish to extend a warm welcome. Both Miss Langelier and Miss Thompson have found a place in the hearts of the girls of Oberlin. A sincere appreciation of their work is felt by all who are connected with the department.

Under the guidance and steady vision of Dr. Moulton, the department maintains a high standard of efficiency and of idealism. Through a program of folk-dancing, floor-work, apparatus, and games, the gymnasium classes afford to every girl in school two years of physical education. To those who major in the department advanced courses are offered which train them for their future work as do few other schools in the country. The work of trained graduates has done much to further the high reputation which the department enjoys.

Among the more delightful sides of the gymnasium courses are the classes in natural dancing which are conducted by Miss Edwards. Each year before the spring vacation a program of dances is presented under her management and the warm welcome and keen pleasure with which it is received are signs of the sincere appreciation which her work has won for her.

Girls who have been with Mrs. Leonard and Miss von Wenck in class or individual work have enjoyed both their instruction and their splendid fellowship. In the spring and fall many of the girls avail themselves of the hikes and campcraft lessons which Miss von Wenck conducts on pleasant week-ends.

Who is there in the school who has not in some way met or worked with Mrs. Hatch? As Recreation Director of the College she enjoys a unique place in the hearts of the student body, but her classes in the gymnasium are fully as much appreciated as her work at "Rec" Hall. Her's is an enviable position on the staff.

The pages which follow picture the activities and phases of athletic work which are connected with the department. The two organizations within the department are the Women's Athletic Association of which every college girl is a member, and the honorary O. C. Club, to which belong those girls who are most proficient in sports.

The sports program is conducted entirely outside of class work with major and minor sports for each season. A large percentage of the girls avail themselves of this opportunity for outdoor recreation.

W. A. A.

The Women's Athletic Association is connected nationally with the A. C. A. C. W. (Athletic Conference of American College Women), and N. A. A. F. (National Amateur Athletic Federation), in endeavoring to maintain the principles upheld by these organizations. This year Oberlin was represented at Cornell in the annual A. C. A. C. W. Convention.

Through the various sports which it sponsors, the W. A. A. endeavors to reach all the girls on the campus. Its influence is felt especially in the annual W. A. A. dance, and in the all-star basketball game, the Yale-Princeton. This year for the first time the Association has charge of the Dancing Pageant which is held in the spring, the entire student body being invited to cooperate in its production.

O. C. CLUB

O. C. Club is composed of all girls who have earned 700 points in a required number of major and minor sports. In this way the letter means all round proficiency in athletics, with emphasis on those sports which most appeal to the individual. The highest honor to be attained in the club is the double chevron awarded to those who earn 1400 points in sports. This year the chevron was presented to Miss Lois Word, '27.

The organization of the club has up to the present been more subjective than objective. The idea of skill is almost one with that of sportsmanship. The club exists for friendship between girls who have the same, yet varying interests. The monthly meetings are social with occasional business discussions.

Those who have reached the O. C. goal all feel that it has been worth while. The name of O. C. is something that goes with them beyond school to unite them with all the past and future membership of the club.

BASEBALL

According to the forecast of the previous year, the class of '28 was scheduled to carry off the honors for the baseball season, but as forecasts will, this one proved to be false, for after a series of games played at odds with the weather the Juniors ('27) finally emerged as victors by beating the Seniors ('26) in the final championship game 8-5. For this last game even the weather favored the players and the enthusiasm of the cheering multitudes increased as the score slowly mounted.

A second team series was carried on in which the Freshmen won.

At the end of the season, the annual All-Star Army-Navy game was played. The teams were well matched and the game remained undecided until the last inning when the Army weakened and the Navy piled up several runs which finally culminated in the victory, 21-13. "Cuss" Word, '27, led the conquering Gobs, and Doris Smith, '26' captained the Army.

Muriel McClelland, ex-'28
Women's Tennis Champion

TENNIS

Tennis is deservedly one of the most popular collegiate minor sports, and in Oberlin especially is it a favorite. The 1926 season was unusually retarded by rain, and there was such a large number of Freshman entrants in the tournament, that the finals were delayed until quite late. The class tournaments were played off first with the results below.

Since Muriel McClelland was the former champion, a new runner-up for the college had to be determined, to play for the championship. "Beth" Scudder defeated Mary Hodgman, and in turn was defeated by Lois Word in a close game. Vivian Hale lost to Ruth Place, who won from Lois Word in the semi-finals. "Mac" then retained her tennis title and the college championship by defeating Ruth Place in the finals.

A steady stroke, clever placement and endurance characterize "Mac's" game. The worth of these qualities in tennis is evident from her success both in Oberlin and elsewhere. "Mac" is now attending Boston University where she will doubtless add more laurels to her tennis crown.

TRACK

With the close of the spring recess, the attention of sport enthusiasts turns to baseball and track, and in Oberlin the interest in the latter sport is more and more on the increase.

Regular practices are held at stated times during each week, and the field is always available for those who desire its use during off hours.

At the close of every season a big all class meet is held in which any may compete who have been to the required number of practice sessions.

VanFossan
Head of Hockey

HOCKEY

The 1926 Hockey season inaugurated a new system of sports management. Class managers cooperating with the head of hockey, a member of the W. A. A. Board, took over the details of the sport. A color tournament was played in October, the teams bearing such classical names as "Mud-hens" and "Holeproof." Because of rain the championship game could not be played.

Early in November the class captains were elected and each class team met every other one once. The Seniors captured the championship in the final game with the Juniors.

The Annapolis-West Point game was a fitting end to any successful season. Although fought to a tie, 4-4, in wind and rain, there was excellent team work and brilliant individual playing. It will be remembered as a tribute to the intense enthusiasm coupled with the proficient coaching of Miss Edwards and Miss Langelier who kept the girls alert with the joy and skill of the game.

Although there were fewer participating than enthusiasts wished, the constant rain was sufficient explanation and another season will see a great increase of interest in a deservedly popular sport.

SOCER

Soccer practices were held once each week during the fall with Miss Thompson as coach. Eligibility to play on one of the teams required one to be out for three-fourths of the practice sessions. The weather this year was more favorable than that of last year and the practices were well attended.

Near the season's end two teams were chosen by the coach and manager. The "Tommies" were captained by "Pat" Clark, and the "Mahaffies" by "Mike" Spahr. Each team waded through to a victory apiece in the first two games, both of which were played mid mud and slime. But the championship fracas was played on a hard and dry field, the "Mahaffies" winning for the second time in a row. It was a hard and fast and open game they played.

Yeend

BASKETBALL

The 1927 basketball season was successful, if not sensational. Practices were begun before the Christmas recess, although the games were not played until the second semester. Perhaps it was this long period of training and waiting that slowed up the games at the beginning of the playing season. At any rate the latter half of the season showed a marked improvement, much credit being due to Miss Thompson, who as a new coach, was working against odds. Her cheery enthusiasm was sincerely appreciated by all the players.

Perhaps the most spectacular part of the season was the brilliant playing of the Freshmen, captained by "Betty" Washburn. The class of '30 walked off with the championship cup, losing only two games, to the Juniors and Sophomores respectively. Had '28 come to life earlier in the season, there might have been a hard battle for the cup. But during the first round of games the Juniors lacked the fast passing and close guarding attack which characterized their later game. They did stage a come-back by defeating all their opponents in the second series.

The season was closed after Yale-Princeton with a banquet at Hobb's Hall.

YALE-PRINCETON

"Wiff"

"H. H."

Lead by incomparable captains in the persons of "Wiff" Yeend and Helen Hodgman, the Yale and Princeton teams furnished a fitting climax to the basketball season in the annual classic of March 29th, when the Tiger succeeded in beating her old rival, the bulldog of Yale.

Warner Gymnasium was packed with rooters from the college and their guests, the teams from thirteen high schools. Much of the excitement and enthusiasm of both players and spectators was caused by the fact that Miss Daviess, beloved by all Oberlin girls, was back to referee the contest.

Though the final score stood 19 to 10 in Princeton's favor, the game was hard fought and much more evenly matched than the result might indicate.

Between the halves Mary Hodgman, as W. A. A. president, presented the swimming cups, and the basketball championship cup. O. C. monograms were also awarded at this time to those girls who had been admitted during the year. An added feature was a group of dances given by Sophomore majors.

Much credit for the success of the event must be given to Virginia VanFossan, student manager, and her assistant, Helen Mary Homegardner.

MINOR SPORTS

Volley ball was the favorite minor sport of the winter season. Practices were held every Tuesday afternoon under the direction of Miss Langelier. About twenty-five girls attended regularly. During the latter part of the season the squad was divided into four teams and a preliminary tournament took place, in which the team lead by Jean Farrington won.

On March 30th the big match was played off between the "Skunks," captained by Alfild Johnson, and the "Scum," with Jean Farrington as captain. The "Scum" easily won the first game but were "Skunked" in the second, and the match stood at a tie. Since there were no spectators except the referee and the score keeper (inventor of the names), the teams had to yell for themselves, adding much to their excitement. Although the score was continually tied up until the end of the game, the "Scum" finally achieved the victory. This game, played on the large court, showed a great advance in technical skill as a result of practicing on the smaller courts where everyone was forced to get into the game.

During the fall and spring, golf and archery become popular as minor sports, and the number of enthusiasts who practice out on Galpin and Dickinson fields is constantly on the increase. When the weather prohibits the use of the open air and green turf, the golf cage is set up in the Women's gym and there the players can whack away to their heart's content.

A further interest in the way of minor athletics is found in the tumbling team, to which girls of all classes are eligible. The team has performed in the Amherst and Oberlin High Schools as well as for various occasions in the gymnasium.

TWA CORBIES AND THE FLEA
(A Ballad)

I looked into my mirror,
And the sight which met my ee,
Was that of twa corbies,
A plucking at a flea.

Oi, oi—Oi, oi
God Save the King!

The tane unto the tother said,
This meal has proved too much for me,
Let's go home and go to bed
And finish it another dee.

Oi, oi—Oi, oi
The King is Dead!

I looked into my mirror,
Did my mirror tell me true?
Was I the flea that looked at me?
Whence came the corbies?—Shoo!

Oi, oi—Oi, oi
God Save the King!

*Editor's Note: The above skit was recently discovered and translated from the Anglo Saxon by a student at Western Reserve University, who found it while doing research work on manuscripts of the late Venerable Bede. We are deeply indebted to L. E. L. for bringing this lost gem of antique balladry to our attention.

MISS PEP'S DIARY
(Apologies to Judge)

Saturday, October 7, 1927.

Did sleep through my eight o'clock, and he did spring a quiz, Chick told me. P. D. did read a story, and excused those who had read it. Pug winked, and we left. He then did take me to the "Vars" for breakfast, but methinks he didn't like too well for me to playfully butter his nose.

It did pour all afternoon, and the football game accordingly was ruined, for I had to wear my slicker, and no one did see my new outfit from the "Style Center."

Went to Rec at night with Bill, who dances divinely.

Wednesday, October 11, 1927.

Did not hear Norm Shaw when he called on me, and blushed a little to think on't. He's so cute, I really don't mind Polly Sci much. Steak and onions had we for dinner, and 'tis verily my usual misfortune to have had a date, and could not eat them that I dearly love. To the movie with Chick's roommate, and 'twas a very sentimental show, so I did hang my head and hardly could I see the screen then. Methinks the matron spies on us, for she opened the door quickly whilst we stood on the porch, and said, " 'Tis unladylike, Miss Pep, to linger at the door. Come in at once." Chick's roommate says things very like to Chick.

Page three hundred twenty

Friday, October 13, 1927.

Methinks 'tis my unlucky day for sure: no one did phone me for a date till near to seven; when Bill called and said he'd just got back from Cleveland, and prayed me please to slide down to Rec with him. But be-thinking me I should not so indulge my boy-friend, I said nay, that I must study Classics, as we well might have a quiz.

Saturday, October 14, 1927.

Did go to Bud Peter's house dance, and 'twas fun indeed, except the lights did make one ghostly pale, and I had left my rouge at home. Did meet a Junior who did plead for the "pleasure of taking me to Rec some night," and truly, I do hope he calls, for he is far from unattractive, and perhaps he'll keep on dating me, and if he likes me, mayhap I shall go to the Prom.

My new shoes hurt my heels, but though I've now a blister on each heel, I ne'er did think much of them then, so much did I adore Bobby Jonesing with Bud.

Tuesday, October 24, 1927,

Did get in morning mail today a Dean call for tomorrow, and I fear me greatly this new Dean. They say he smiles on some, but thunders cruelly at most. A man whose name I fain would place called me a week in advance for a date. Him I gave it, but I cannot tell just who he is, and fear me I shall rue this promise to go to the movies with him.

Tuesday, November 1, 1927.

My unknown date did ring my bell, and with such quavering head and voice did I greet him, he no doubt thought him I had seen a ghost. He says he's in my class with Mr. Sims, but 'tis so large, and I so sleepy afternoons, I did never notice him. He is quite nice, though somewhat bold, methinks.

SAVAGE, 24; MICHIGAN, 22

The following excerpts are taken from editorials, sport write-ups, and poetry appearing in the Oberlin Review of November 23, 1892. They constitute a summary of the activities of one, C. Winfred Savage, left halfback on the Oberlin eleven of that year, during a game between the University of Michigan and Oberlin, played at Ann Arbor.

See, he escapes their snare!
See, he is almost there!
Let glad shouts rend the air,
Oberlin triumphs!

C. W. Savage
1894

By two o'clock they had donned their canvas coats of mail and were soon upon the athletic field. The people came until there were nearly seven hundred to give the U. of M. cheer.

Oberlin begins with a V, Savage taking the ball for 12 yds. Savage bucks 8 yds. Savage sprints 20 yds. around left end for a touchdown. Savage gains 13 yds. on a V. The famous slugger, Pierson, is ruled off for hitting Savage, and not satisfied, strikes our umpire in the face. Later he was heard to say, "I made a fool of myself in there." Savage gains 15 yds. on a V. Oberlin again formed a V and Savage made a 25 yd. dash around left end. First half, Ann Arbor, 22; Oberlin, 18.

After an intermission of 15 minutes the game was called with an agreement between both captains to stop at 4:50, to enable Oberlin to catch the train. (Now Michigan has the ball on Oberlin's six yd. line.) They fail to make 5 yds. in four downs. SAVAGE NOW SETS HIMSELF FOR HIS 90-YD. SPRINT. "Cap." Williams gives him an ideal pass and away he shoots down the field. By clever dodging Jewett is his only contestant, and does not pull him down until the 5 yd. line is reached. Johnson (two plays later), on a double pass, dashes out at the right with a clear field for a touchdown. Hart punts out to Fauver in 30 seconds, and in 15 seconds Hart kicks goal. Time expires. Oberlin wins, 24 to 22.

Ann Arbor claims, with most unblushing effrontery, to have won the game, 26 to 24, on the ground that our fellows stopped four minutes before time was up. They made a touchdown during this time with not a soul to oppose them. The utter falsehood of this claim is evident to everyone.

"Three cheers for our noble boys collectively! Three cheers for each one separately! Three cheers and a tiger for Heisman. He has taught us scientific ball!"

DON'T ASK ME ANY MORE

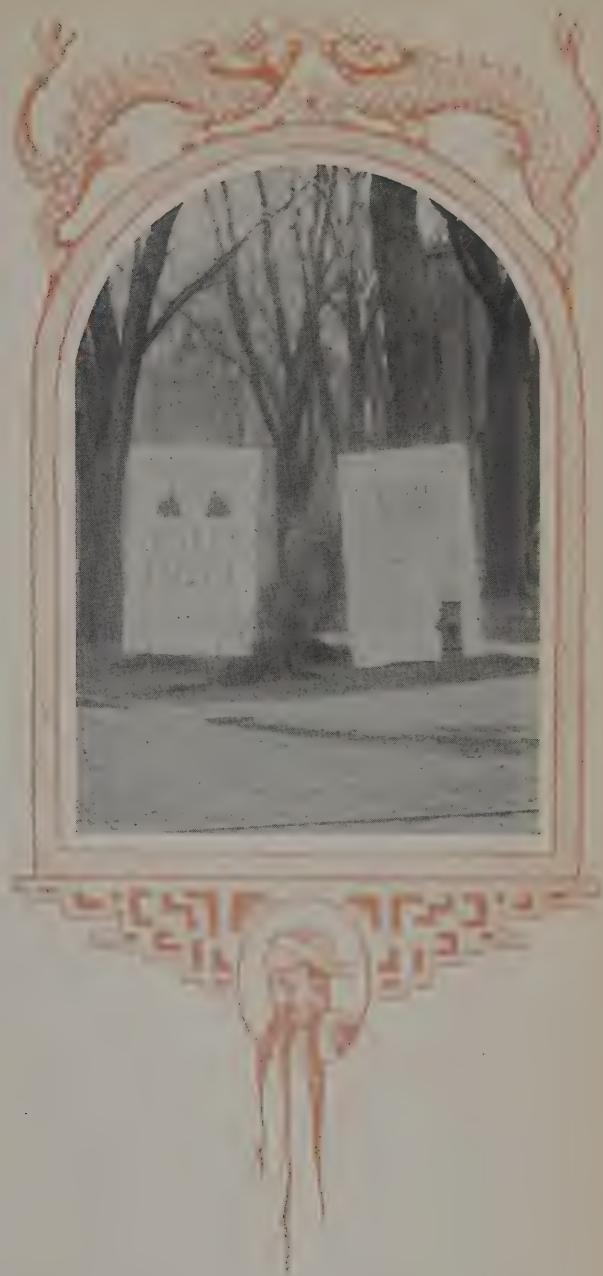

The answers to the following questions are to be found on page 330 of this volume.*

1. Who is it has requested that his famous ninety-yard run, for long the subject of the most ancient existing joke in the English language, be hereafter not mentioned in polite society?
2. When and where did Oberlin have an outdoor swimming pool?
3. What Oberlin professors are in "Whose Hoo"?
4. What are Pyle Inn fussers called?
5. What does the Women's Senate do?
6. What milk-and-honey like cry once comforted Oberlin women during a dark moment in the college's history? Who did the crying?
7. Of what must Sir Walter Scott been thinking when he wrote, "The stag at eve had drunk his fill."
8. Who set French Hall on fire?
9. Who invented the "Hot fudge?"
10. What profs are commonly called "Freddie," "P. D.," "Pete," and "Pullman."
11. Who is well known because he has a women's job, is the designer of the college smoke stack, and is a presidential possibility?
12. Who immortalized the following phrases: "We're on the ten yard line, boys"; "What's in it for me?"; and "Chicago, the dream city?"
13. In what professor's courses do students most easily pass?
14. Who is the best known character in Oberlin; thought by some Frosh to be a professor?
15. What it is "fullertonized" Prof. Fullerton?
16. Why doesn't the Sunken Church continue to sink?
17. Who is it wears no man's vest, and is said to be able to teach any class in college on ten minutes notice?

*Editor's Note: When subjected to this test the following prominent people made these grades:

Luman Whitney	95	Professor Stetson	55
Richard Bliss	90	Mark Eccles	30

Mr. Hartson made a game effort but fainted while pondering over the thirteenth question.

MIDNIGHT ON MAIN STREET

(Oberlin's apologies to Sinclair Lewis)

I.

Milton Champion was drunk. He was eloquently drunk, lovingly and pugnaciously drunk. He leaned against the bar in the main salon of the Green Lantern, and requested F. "Booze" Artz, the bartender, to join him in "The Black Bottom," a waltz of the day.

Blowing on a glass, polishing it and glancing at Milton through its flashing rotundity, "Booze" leaned against the counter and said, "Vo-Do-Do-Ve-O-Do."

"Put it there, old beefer. Me and my roommate'll show you some singing as is singing. Meet roommate, Brute Horton. Bes' roommate in world. Wouldn't live with him if wasn't! Bes' wrestler in Ob'lin. Meet roommate!"

II.

Milton and "Brute" retired to a table where "Slats" Tate dangled his legs and nourished the long, rich chocolate strains suitable to drunken melody. Actually the three of them sang very well.

Booze shuffled toward them. He was born to be a senator. He never said anything important, and he always said it barkingly.

III.

"Shut up, boys. What you need is 'nother drink."

"I'll get another drink," soothed Brute, and Milton slid into tears, weeping over the ancient tragic sorrows of one whom he remembered as "Six Cylinder" Love.

But the light was dim, completely soothing. He floated up. It was exquisite. His legs moved by themselves, without effort. He laughed, and rested against the doorjam of Council Hall. How had he got there? It had been a great party. For the first time in weeks he was relieved from the boredom of Baldwin's intellectual atmosphere.

Twin Buildings of the Oberlin Business College

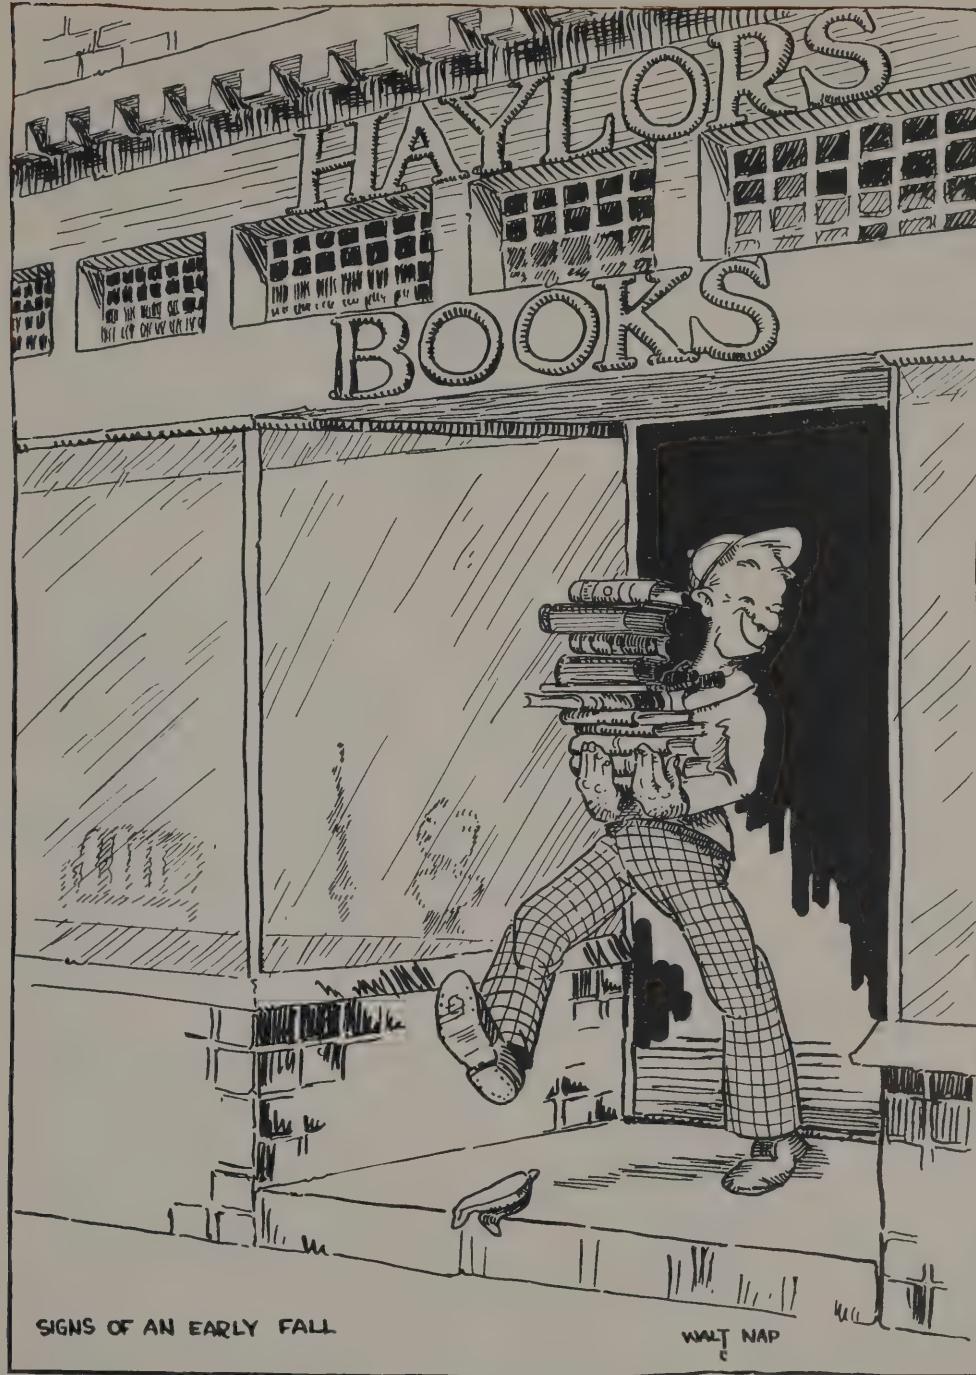

The Oberlin Business College has made great advancement during recent years. It is said to be the first business college in Ohio to admit only high school graduates. That they appreciate the opportunity to study in a school of college grade is shown by the fact that students are enrolled this year from over sixty high schools in Ohio, in addition to those from other states.

The Oberlin Business College is a member of the National Association of Accredited Schools and was placed on the Accredited List of Ohio Colleges in 1915.

THE OBERLIN COLLEGE

OBERLIN, OHIO

HENRY CHURCHILL KING

President

THE COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES
THE GRADUATE SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY
THE CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

The College of Arts and Sciences

The enrollment in the College of Arts and Sciences is still limited. All places available for women were promised April 1st. There are still places available for men, both in the freshman class and in the upper classes. Applications should be addressed to the Secretary of the College.

The Graduate School of Theology

Admission to the Graduate School of Theology expects previous preparation equivalent to an Oberlin A. B. degree. Correspondence with reference to admission to this department should be addressed to the Dean, Professor T. W. Graham.

The Conservatory of Music

The enrollment in the Conservatory of Music is also limited. Applications for admission in September, 1927, are now being received and these should be sent either to the Secretary of the College or to the Director of the Conservatory, Professor F. H. Shaw.

The next College year will begin September 20, 1927.

The co-operation of all alumni and former students is urged in bringing the claims of Oberlin to the attention of desirable students. For catalogues and general information write to the Secretary, George M. Jones.

MURDER IN THE BATHTUB

or

"CHEESE IT"

A Story

by

Mme. LUCAS

One long roll on a snare drum: two booms on the bass: a rush of surging waters: two shrill squeaks from a jazz flute: and silence—dead, dank silence—

I.

Tragedy—cold, clammy tragedy—lurked, 'mid the shadows—wet, soaked shadows—of South Professor Street,—a foggy, drizzling South Professor Street.

II.

As yet our hero feels it not. Underneath his slicker—a shining, yellow slicker, bedaubed in the most "collegiate" manner of the Indiana High School—he is dry and happy. He whistles—a loud and raucous whistle—"Show Me the Way to Go Home"—his favorite, for it sounds so wicked. His favorite would be wicked, Jim's just the type—he's a devil—a "whirl" as the Pyle Inn girls call him.

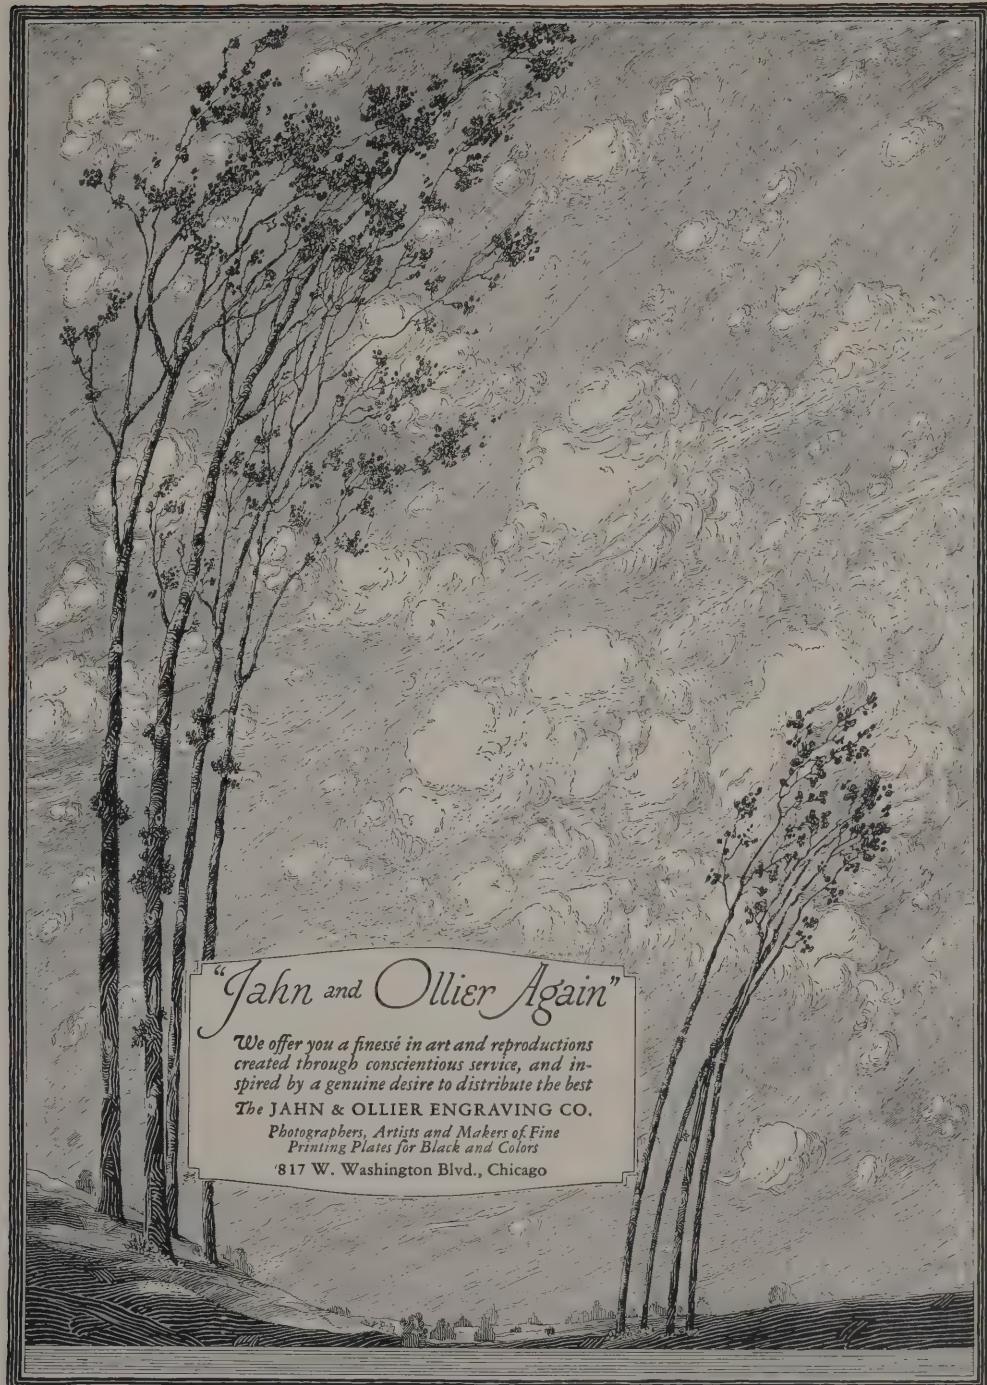

And today, being Sunday, had seen him more devilish than usual. His actions at dinner alone would have marked him as a wicked fellow—especially when he leaned back in his chair and played with a fork during the blessing, and later when he took out a pipe, and demonstrated it to the girls. Still greater evil did he do on a bumming trip to Elyria: he went to a movie. At the stag stable that night he'd smelt much of brimstone, even "Andy" couldn't laugh louder over their little jokes.

III.

No, as yet the treachery and tragedy in the air had no effect on Jim. He had proven himself a devil and he was happy as he mounted the steps of Brand House—a fated house on this night. The bed was going to feel good. That Ec. quizz could go to the —(he was almost getting so he could say it without a hitch). "Lou" would tell him enough to get him through that. Wooster's quizzes are pie anyway.

The house was unusually quiet, the stairs never so squeaky before. Not a light under any door—only a snore (Andy Westervelt's) broke the silence. Jim tiptoed down the hall to his room and once in, fumbled for his closet door and a hook to hang his slicker on.

THIS ANNUAL ENGRAVED BY JAHN & OLLIER

1928

The rustle his slicker made had an echo—a rustle in the corner near his desk. Jim shivered in silence. His slicker slid to the floor.

Lightning struck across the sky—his room was for a second as bright as day.

IV.

The cannon like crash of thunder woke Jim from a momentary daze to the realization that he had seen motion in the far corner of the room—more than motion, he had seen—

V.

—treachery. That brief flash of brilliant light had shown him in the presence of treachery. The devil in him leaped to the fore—he saw red—. Even his roommate had not the right to take advantage of his absence and the dark to steal his cake—he'd show him.

As the thunder rolled into the distance, Jim leaped across to the waste basket, where he had hidden the cake, and grappled with his adversary. The struggle was short; nothing could withstand that devilish passion. Jim had become a red-headed monster of destruction. He rushed down the hall carrying his victim. With the sight of the tub as he passed the bathroom, a cunning thought struck into his mind —torture—torture.

VI.

Later Jim returned to his room, finished the cake, slowly disrobed and went to bed. He slept well that night.

But morning found him up much earlier than his usual rising hour. Before the rest of the house was stirring, he crept to the bathroom with stealthy tread, anticipation tingling in his every fibre.

Sweet revenge it was to see the treacherous one in torture. There he lay—worn out in body, crazed in mind—his eyes dilated with terror. His one shrill word of supplication availed naught. Jim had worn his new "O" sweater and he felt big, and strong and remorseless—a devil for vengeance.

He did not gloat for long, but put in the plug and turned on the water. His victim made hardly a motion. A night of torturous efforts to surmount the sides of the tub, coupled with the nerve-wracking drip—drip, of a partly open faucet, had completely done for him.

The end came speedily. The water rushed in, swamping Jim's roommate. Past scenes rolled before his eyes—and he was dead.

Five minutes later the murderer emptied the tub and removed the corpse.

J. Victor Lipkey was now a full-fledged devil—he had killed his mouse.

ODE TO A ROOMMATE

Pal, after all, I've just one thing to say,
 As I sit here in zoö class, dreaming today.
 Only one longing there flames in my heart.
 Is it absence from you? (But we're not far apart.)
 Is it hunger? But that can't be; no,
 (I breakfasted less than an hour ago.)
 Is it weariness, maybe, a long needed rest?
 (But last night my sleep, undisturbed, was the best.)
 'Tis no thought of these, Buddy, through my mind floats,
 But only the hope that you're taking some notes.

We Are Interested In Your Good Looks.
